Dear Mr. Walter:

I was very glad to get your letter a few weeks ago. In some ways it may have been for the best that your trip led to the postponement, especially as you feel that perhaps you can give more time to it. From a standpoint you can give more time to it.

From a standpoint, you can give more time to it. From a standpoint, you can give more time to it.

I may be able to give you some helpful information also. Your talk of history courses is very interesting. But before I speak of that, let me mention that I have not as yet heard from Headet. There is just one difficulty here.

My old friend and colleague, Harry Denny, Paris prize winner of 1909. By the way, I was so now.
The active head of Carnegie Institute is most anxious that I join his "all Penn" design staff. He has made me no definite offer, but I am expecting one in the course of the next month; possibly it will be in my hands before this letter reaches you. I am writing this quickly, so that you may see the situation I am in. There are many reasons why I don't wish to accept his offer, among them being among the foremost, still I know it will be a good one and I, also, is some 150 miles nearer New York and Philadelphia. And as I have been brought in touch with many of the artists of the former city during my stay in Rome I do not wish to entirely lose my touch with them, especially as it could

I have turned to good account.

On the other side there are many reasons why I should like to come to Boston. Architectural possibilities seem so promising there as anywhere the institute only has my interest but seems like home and others that you know and I need not mention. Still it will be very embarrassing for me to turn down a certain offer for a possibility, even though that possibility seems a reasonable certainty.

If after receiving this note you find that President Scott has not yet sent a communication to me, do try to expedite it as I will my way. I hope to have a definite reply to Sternfeld until the last possible moment.

I am still looking forward to joining you next year and all things being in any sense equal.
If you have a moment, read the note information about my work at Rice. I would be delighted to send you the details. Concerning your studies, it seems you would probably be a better authority on the Renaissance and the Middle Ages. Is it possible to study French and England?

I want to take an intensive course in French and English. What are your thoughts on this decision?

I was thinking about taking a course in French and English. What are your thoughts on this decision?

I would feel a necessity for a balance of work and leisure. I would like to hear your advice on this matter.

If I become involved in a heavy workload, I would feel a necessity to lighten my workload. What are your thoughts on this decision?
