Wednesday

Sweetheart dearest— it's still cold down here also in the morning and at night, but still you can go around in short sleeves, I like it this way, it always makes me feel really like working, but when it's hot, I always get a more or less (mostly more) lazy feeling.

Today was the prettiest day down here, just as clear all day and now darling the moon is already shining and it isn't even dark yet (7:15).

I know how it looked last night and I nearly drove me crazy. Honey mine if I could just be with you tonight and could hold you and Kiss you, I would be perfectly happy. I sure do long for you dear. I am ready, too, to start for South America, so as soon as my ship comes in we'll start, or had you rather wait until June? Then we can leave right from here and go on our honeymoon. That sure would be fine, wouldn't it.

Nash came back today and he just brought me in a piece of candy which he said "we" made yesterday, meaning he and his girl. It sure was good.

Honey you know that any place I go you are more than welcome to go along with me. I'd like to have it so it wouldn't be any other way.
And listen here when we start doing research work it won't be on worms, but probably on metamorphosis results due to treatment with thyroid or maybe some physiological problem, as the value of petunin is guess what?

I am afraid seven hours is going to be mild compared with what I am going to have to do from now on. I have a chem exam tomorrow afternoon, instead of giving it to us on the day we have lectures (M.W.T) he takes us out of lab and gives us an exam. I know I am going to bust it, because it's simply fierce what we have been over this term.
and I can't possibly learn it all tonight, when I've got three other lessons to get as well. I am already two weeks behind in lab paper grading, and our chandler gave me all his term papers this morning and also a long article to copy for him, but I should worry. Oh honey, I forgot no. I haven't got a thing to do and can't find anything to do with my time, and it just drags, which it really does.

Dr. Altenburg and I got into an argument this afternoon as to which was the best way to instruct, give a thing in lecture first and then in lab. or vice versa, neither one of us won, we finally compromised.

I certainly did sleep well
last night, and know it wouldn't have taken anything less than an earthquake or barrage of 3-in. field pieces to wake me up. When the bell rang this morning I couldn't imagine what was going on.
I didn't get to bed until 11
last night so I knew I'd sleep. I am feeling fine tonight though only lonesome
that's all, Gee but I'll be glad when I won't feel that way anymore, and it's 5½ weeks off sweetie.
If you want to do me a real big favor just slip me a couple of pair of socks. I sure need them, mine are either all holes or all darns. I'll give you all of me if you will. I'll tell you pack them in your suitcase when you come down.

Well if the government wants to beat these sales out of some money they sure are going about it right, but the trouble is they always find their mistakes later on and then mess everything up. Maybe we are wrong though.

Mammy what did you mean when you said that Oklahoma trip nearly finished you. I was that way. If you don't write and tell me I am going to haunt you when you come down. Don't forget it now hear? I'll write some more later but it's 8 o'clock and I've got to study. I love you sweetheart.

Later - 44 p.m.

Well I have studied until I can't stay awake any longer and I have two more days of lecture notes to go over. I think I can do that in the morning. We have been having so much in chemistry lately it's almost impossible to get it all and the darn fool keeps saying that we will start to work before long. I sure feel sorry for myself to-morrow afternoon when I go into that exam.
you know it's just like I said once before, I don't believe I could fuss with you. I know good and well that I wouldn't do it.

The engineers are planning to give a show here on May 1st just showing all the different equipment that they have and the various things in operation showing stunts with liquid air, various chemicals, and machines etc. That is what I have been listening to while I was trying to study tonight, but I wasn't bothered much.

Yes darling I got my wish thank you for sending it pleasant dreams. I love you.
With all my love.
