

Pathetics Defeat Nads, Take Title

The Pathetics, led by Ralph Knoohuizen with 19 points, outran the Nads 59-44 to take the intramural basketball championship Wednesday night.

Knoohuizen and John Kemper, who ended the game with 12 points, made a rout out of a close game in the last quarter, helping the Pathetics outscore the Nads 20-12 in the final period. The score was 39-32 at the end of the third stanza, and 28-23 at the half.

The winners were aided with superior numbers, and managed to platoon against the Nads, who had only seven players for the contest. Ken Katzman headed the losers with 13 markers.

The college basketball play-offs will go under way soon, as Will Rice and Hanszen meet February 17 at 7:15. Baker and Wiess clash in the other first-round game two nights later.

The consolation game between the two losers will be held February 24, and the championship contest is slated as the preliminary to the Rice-Baylor contest, and will be played on March 2 at 5:45.
