SCEP stresses need for support in filing reports

By PHIL GARON
Thresher Editorial Staff

About 2,000 of the 5,000 SCEP forms mailed out have been returned, according to SCEP Chairman Peter Hollings. However, a lack of response in several departments has created problems in evaluation.

Hollings stressed that returns from most of the courses in Group B, with the exception of economics courses, has been "wretched."

Response has also been poor from the departments of geology and electrical engineering. The greatest scarcity of returns has come from the small, upper-level courses in all of the departments sampled.

Hollings urged that students who have not returned the computerized forms do so immediately, and suggested that students make use of last year's SCEP forms, which are now in the college commons and the RMC, to evaluate any courses, particularly the small, advanced courses.

The deadline for all the forms sent through the mails is Monday, March 20, since the computer will evaluate these forms during the spring recess. The forms now in the colleges may be filled out during the vacation and returned by the end of March.