

Arts Carnival Will Have Music Drama and Ballet

The Houston Museum of Fine Arts is holding a carnival Saturday, November 1 from 12 to 10 pm, which will offer many things of interest to Rice students. For a slight admission fee of $1.00, programs by high school glee clubs and bands are offered, and food will be served.

The adult entertainment program has an impressive list of activities. Selections from the latest play at Theatre Inc., and a part of the Alley's "Mary, Queen of Scotland" will be given. Selections will also be given by a local ballet company, and the Houston Grand Opera singers.

Tom Evans and Beverly Montgomery of Rice have been asked to perform, as have combos and singers from the Cork Club, the International Club, and the Houston Club. Selections given by the Children's Theater, travelogues, and short film features will also be included in this varied program.

The Houston Museum, three blocks away from Rice on Main Street, has just completed a new wing designed by Mies van der Rohe, one of the most outstanding architects in the U. S.
