

Texas Eastman Offers Awards

The Texas Eastman Company, a division of the Eastman Kodak Company, has announced the awarding of a $2,000 fellowship for Master of Science Degree study in engineering to the Rice Institute for the 1960-61 academic year.

Selections will be based upon financial need and scholastic ability. The recipient will be chosen by the Institute faculty.

A similar engineering fellowship will be offered at the University of Arkansas and a $3500 grant for a Doctorate in Chemistry will be given at Oklahoma State University.

Kodak officials explained that the grants are based on the number of graduates of these institutions who joined the company five years ago and are presently employed.
