

Rice College Board Gives '59 Fall Fashion Advice

Pleated skirts, big plaids, sleevy, and waistlines are making the biggest fashions news this fall, say members of several downtown department stores' College Boards.

More and more college-bound girls are wearing belted sweaters over pleated skirts. The sweater is either blended or matched to go with the skirt, and an entire outfit, sweaters and skirts, are not necessarily dyed to match, but rather blended to harmonize.

There is quite an emphasis on sleeves, on suits especially. Sleeves are not too long, and usually a blouse will be showing underneath the sleeves. Gloves should be worn underneath the sleeves too.

Individuality is stressed in hemlines, the length will be according to personal taste. And the natural waistline is back—very few chemises or trapises will be seen this fall.
