Discussion of an ambitious research project to be financed by the federal government dominated the recent executive meeting of the Texas Intercollegiate Student Association at Trinity University in San Antonio.

TISA applied to the U. S. Office of Education for a research grant which could exceed $400,000 over a period of three years, according to Bill Schnitt, Rice’s delegate to the conference.

The fund would be used to finance a comprehensive study of the problems of higher education, with particular emphasis on the new role of student government in college affairs.

Other discussion centered on a Leadership Training Conference to be held at Baylor in December, a Conference on Inter-American Affairs scheduled for February in Austin, and a late February Conference on Higher Education in Houston.
