Homecoming Queen Vote
Set For November 2 & 7

By ANNE WATTS

This fall marks the passing of a Rice tradition. Gone is the familiar sight of the prospective homecoming queen, ready smile on her lips and even readier petition in her hand, making her bid for the title. She has been replaced by a system, a system so complicated that even the campus’s most vigorous vote-getter couldn’t help feeling a bit regal if she came out of it the victor.

EACH MEN’s college will nominate ten girls through its cabinet. Wednesday, November 2, each of the colleges will hold a special election to narrow the field to the five loveliest. All ballots, uncounted, will be sent to the Student Association election committee for tallying.

The SA committee then picks the top five from each college. Since some of the more sought-after girls may be on more than one college’s list, the SA will have a list of from five to twenty girls.

THE NAMES will be placed in competition in an all-school election Monday, November 7. The four girls who get the most votes in this last election will

The one receiving the most votes will be Homecoming Queen for 1960.

HOW WILL the girls be matched up with men’s colleges? The college who gave the queen the most votes in its individual election will have her as its representative, and so on down the list of princesses.

When the girls step onto the field, the student body will know which college each princess represents, but the identity of the queen will remain secret until the official announcement by Judd Stiff, chairman of the SA election committee.
HOMECOMING...

After the bonfire, at 10:15, WRC and Baker men will take their dates to the Baker commons to dance, while Wiess and Hanszen congregate in the Wiess commons. Music will be provided until 11:15 pm.

GAME TIME Saturday is two o’clock. No Rice student has to be reminded of this clash with the traditional rivals, the Aggies. Of course, halftime ceremonies will be highlighted by the crowning of the Homecoming Queen.

Each of the men’s colleges will hold a buffet before the dance at 7:30 pm (price: $1.75 per person.) Hanszen, Will Rice and Baker will all be at Galvez rooms; Wiess will be at the Buccaneer. The dance itself is at Moody Hall, between the Buccaneer and the Galvez, from 8:30 to 12:30. Tickets for the dance are $5.50.
