

Bear With Us

The next few issues of The Thresher will be somewhat handicapped with the absence of the editor, who is ill and will be confined to his bed until at least January. We ask that you please bear with us as we attempt to continue publishing without his guiding influence and talent at tying loose ends together and hope you will wish him, as we do, a speedy recovery.

In the meantime, we feel it "just won't be the same" until he returns.—M. T.