

The civil engineering department of Rice University has received a $22,032 Public Health Service grant for graduate training in sanitary engineering.