

Stepping Out In The World

The Rice Community Action Committee fills a long-present gap in the pattern of Rice life. By providing coordination, information and publicity, the new committee should be able to wipe out most excuses that have been given in the past for not participating in community service projects.

Recognizing the need to get the Rice citizen away from the campus and into the real world, the committee has not limited itself to any particular segment of the Rice community. It is attempting to draw from both the men's and the women's colleges, from the faculty, from the graduate students, and from the faculty and graduate wives.

If the committee is successful, it will be greatly aiding both the University and Houston in helping Rice recognize and fulfill its rightful position in the community.
