LYNN GRIEBLING, soprano
*MICHAEL MOORES, piano and harpsichord assisted by
ALBERT TIPTON, flute
†RICHARD GILES, cello

Wednesday, January 7, 1981
8:00 p.m. in Hamman Hall

PROGRAM

Scherzi Musicali
Maledetto sia l’aspetto
La mia turca
Eri gia tutti mia
Ecco di dolci raggi
Io ch’armato sin hor
Quel sguardo sdegnosetto

Claudio Monteverdi
(1567-1643)

Singe Seele, Gott zum Preise
Susse Stille
Flammende Rose
From “Nuen Deutsche Arien”

Georg Friedrich Handel
(1685-1759)

Nichts
Nacht
Die Georgine
Allerseelen
From Op. 10

Richard Strauss
(1864-1949)

Intermission

*Faculty member at University of Houston
†Daniel Dror Fellow at University of Houston
The English texts of the songs in tonight's program are as follows:

Monteverdi - 6 Scherzi Musicali

1. Maledetto sia l'aspetto

   Damned be the appearance that burns me, unhappy me
   As I die, only for you; does my faith fail?

   Damned be the appearance that burns me, unhappy me.
   So craves she who ceased to love; what shall I do?

   Damned be the arrow that injured me, I will die from it.

   Wicked woman, alas. my death! Such is the wish of she who hurt me.
   (Poet unknown)

2. 2. La mia Turca

   My Turkish lady, who has no faith in love
   Twists her feet if I tell her of my pain
   Thus from my double torment, languishing I die.

   Then aloof she remains, permitting not even
   The sun to enjoy her beauty
   Thus from my double torment languishing I die.

   To soften the cruel one is not possible
   Though I pray with tears and sighs in my pain
   Thus from my double torment languishing I die.

   Of me she laughs, and the archer
   Spreads poison over all my thoughts
   Thus in view of my double torment
   I no longer die, I no longer die.
   (Poet unknown)

3. 3. Eri già tutta mia

   You were already mine, mine that soul and that heart
   Who takes you away from me? A new tie of love?
   Oh beauty, treasure, admirable faithfulness
   Where are you?

   You were already mine
   Now you are mine no longer,
   Oh, Oh, mine you are no more.

   Only to me you turned your beautiful laughing eyes
   For me your golden hair spread to the winds
   Oh fleeting pleasures, oh faithful heart
   Where are you?

   You were already mine
   Now you are mine no longer,
   Oh, Oh, mine you are no more.

   The joy in my face, oh that you gaze at no longer
   My song, my smile is changed to torment
   Oh lost sighs, oh vanished pity
   Where are you?

   You were already mine
   Now you are mine no longer,
   Oh, Oh, mine you are no more.
   (Poet unknown)

4. 4. Eccò di dolci raggi

   Here, with sweet rays the sun is armed
   After winter, now comes the flowered season;
   Inebriated with sweetest love
   The wind sleeps quietly in Clarida's bosom

   Makes the flourishing grass tremble.
   The air, the ground, the sky breathe love
   Burn then with love
   Burn, burn, burn, burn,
   Burn, each heart
   Burn, burn, each heart.
   (Poet unknown)

5. 5. Io ch'armato a sin hor

   I, who was protected until now by hard ice,
   Was able to defend myself
   From the assaults of love.
   Its pungent, burning dart
   Was unable to reach my soul
   Or pierce my bosom.

   Now that everything changes under a new sky
   To two beautiful eyes shall I not surrender?
   Yes, Yes, disarm me of my past coldness
   Burn then with love
   Burn, burn, burn, burn my heart
   Burn, burn my heart.
   (Poet unknown)

   translations - Juliet Rothman

6. Quel sguardo sdegno setto

   That disdainful little look
   Glowing and threatening
   That poisonous arrow
   Flies to strike my heart,
   Beauties after which I crave
   And from which I am divided
   Torment me with a glance
   Heal me with a smile.

   Arm yourself, eyes
   With harsh, harsh severity
   Pour upon my heart
   A rain of sparks.

   But let not the lip delay
   To revive me from death
   Let those glances hurt me
   But heal me with that smile.

   Beautiful eyes, to arms, to arms, to arms
   Rejoice, rejoice, rejoice, for you I prepare my bosom
   Plague me.

   Until I faint.
   And if by your arrows
   I remain conquered
   Let those glances hurt me
   But heal me with that smile.
   (Poet unknown)

Handel - 3 German Songs

Singe, Seele, Gott zum Preise

Sing, my soul, in praise of God,
who in so many ways makes all the world so beautiful,
Let him who delights our ears,

Süss Stille, sanfte Quelle

Sweet quiet, gentle source of peaceful calm
My soul, my very soul is made joyful

Flammende Rose, Zierde der Erden

Flaming rose, worldly adornment
the shining garden's bewitching glory
Sibelius - Six Songs, Opus 90

1. Norden (The North)

The lakes are freezing. Migrating swans, sorrowful, go to the south, looking for somewhere to be, but long to be back. They go to other places, but still long to be home. Then someone will see you from the palms and say - "Why do you long for the north?"
"He who longs always for the north is longing for Heaven."

2. Hennes budskap (Her message)

Come you sorrowful Nordic wind! Each time you come you have a message from her. You come in the breeze, do you carry her sighs? You come in the wind, do you carry her plaints? You come in the storm, do you carry her despair? "Oh, one who has taken an oath, forgotten a promise, now all alone - Oh who could take me from the old man's pains and kisses back to the young man, my first love?"

3. Morgonen (Morning)

The sun's purple drops already shine on the haystacks. In the woods, birds joyously go from tree-top to tree-top. A thousand happy sounds die away, and a thousand happy sounds begin. Dawn, has a dark eye seen your light yet? Gone are all problems, all fears. No-one in pain, no one lost; all is happiness, peace and hope. With Nature's morning each heart's morning awakes.

4. Fogelfångaren (Bird Catcher)

I wander in the forest, and look up into fir and spruce; often I see birds, but not one flies down! But anyway, I am happy, because I have a noose that never has been empty before; the birds are as happy to be in my net as I am to catch them. And when I come home I set my net again, and a girl is the bird and the snare is my arms.

5. Sommarnatten (Summer Night)

On the calm lake in the woods I was sitting in my boat all night, fishing. A song thrush began its song, and angrily I said "Please put your beak into the water and stop that noise until daylight." The a voice said "Lad, put your fishing-rod away, and just look at the world around you." And when I did, it was all so beautiful, and I thought of my sweetheart, so that I too began to sing.

6. Hvem styrde hit din väg? (Who steered your way here?)

Far away from the water's wave and the mountain top, you alone saw the day and grew up alone. I did not miss you or look for you; I didn't know the road which would have taken me to you. But we were meant for each other, though we were like buds in separate trees. Oh bird from far away, what steered your way here to the heart that was cold? How could you be all for whom you once were nothing?

Richard Strauss - Four Songs

Die Georgine (The Dahlia) Op.10 No.4

Why do you bloom so late, little dahlia? The rose's tale has been told, and the bees are full of honey, waiting for sleep. Is it not too cold for you, these nights? If only I could bring the spring, you yellow dreamer, then you would not be the last flower. But give me your hand, sister, because I have missed life's May, just as you missed the spring. And late or early, when love plants itself in my heart.
No-one in pain, no one lost; all is happiness, peace and hope. Each morning each heart's morning awakes.

4. Fogelfångaren (Bird Catcher)

I wander in the forest, and look up into fir and spruce; often I see birds, but not one flies down! But anyway, I am happy, because I have a noose that never has been empty before; the birds are as happy to be in my net as I am to catch them. And when I come home I set my net again, and a girl is the bird and the snare is my arms.

5. Sommarnatten (Summer Night)

On the calm lake in the woods I was sitting in my boat all night, fishing. A song thrush began its song, and angrily I said "Please put your beak into the water and stop that noise until daylight." The a voice said "Lad, put your fishing-rod away, and just look at the world around you." And when I did, it was all so beautiful, and I thought of my sweetheart, so that I too began to sing.

6. Hvem styrde hit din väg? (Who steered your way here?)

Far away from the water's wave and the mountain top, you alone saw the day and grew up alone. I did not miss you or look for you; I didn't know the road which would have taken me to you. But we were meant for each other, though we were like buds in separate trees. Oh bird from far away, what steered your way here to the heart that was cold? How could you be all for whom you once were nothing?

Richard Strauss - Four Songs

Die Georgine (The Dahlia) Op.10 No.4

Why do you bloom so late, little dahlia? The rose's tale has been told, and the bees are full of honey, waiting for sleep. Is it not too cold for you, these nights? If only I could bring the spring, you yellow dreamer, then you would not be the last flower. But give me your hand, sister, because I have missed life's May, just as you missed the spring. And late or early, when love plants itself in my heart, it is the same ecstasy ... and the same pain.

Nichts (Nothing) Op.10 No.2

You say I should name her, my queen of the realm of song? What fools you are, I know her less than you! You ask me the color of her eyes, you ask about the sound of her voice, you ask about her walking, dancing carriage - ah, what do I know of that! Is not the sun the source of all life, all light? And what do we know of it, I and you and everyone? Nothing! Nothing!
Nacht (Night) Op.10 No.3

Out of the forest comes the night, quietly she moves in from behind the trees; beware now! All the lights of the world, all the flowers, all the colors, she extinguishes; she steals the sheaves from the fields, she takes everything that is lovely, steals the silver from the streams, and from the copper dome of the cathedral she takes away its gold. The spray of flowers stands plundered, draw closer, soul to soul; oh, I am afraid the night will steal you, too, away from me.

Allerseelen (All Souls' Day) Op.10 No.8

Place on the table the fragrant mignonettes, bring here the last of the red asters, and let us speak again of love, as long ago in May. Give me your hand, that I may secretly clasp it, and if it is observed by others, I will not mind; give me one of your sweet glances, as long ago in May. Today each grave is flowering and fragrant, once a year is All Soul's Day — come to my heart that I again may have you, as long ago in May.

Hindemith - 3 Songs, from Opus 18

On the steps

On the steps sit my little ears like two little cats who wait for their milk. On the steps sit my heart and waits impatiently like a little spirit, chin in hand. But the messenger with the letters does not come. I lie deaf and without heart within the room. I wish to have nothing back, not the pink kittens, not the little spirit.

Before you

Before you I appear awake and I kiss and embrace you. Without opening your eyes you put your arm around me and say: How like a Chopin waltz. We seem to float in air.

Trumpets

Under the willows where brown children play and leaves are in motion sound the trumpets. A churchyard's awe. Banners of scarlet through the maples' mourning, rider along the rye fields, empty mills. Or shepherds sing and stags tred in the circle of its fire, the grove's very old sorrow. Dancing lifts itself from a black wall... Banners of scarlet, laughing, madness, trumpets.
You were already mine
Now you are mine no longer,
Oh, Oh, mine you are no more.

Only to me you turned your beautiful laughing eyes
For me your golden hair spread to the winds
Oh fleeting pleasures, oh faithful heart
Where are you?
You were already mine
Now you are mine no longer,
Oh, Oh, mine you are no more.

The joy in my face, oh! that you gaze at no longer
My song, my smile is changed to torment
Oh lost sighs, oh vanished pity
Where are you
You were already mine
Now you are mine no longer,
Oh, Oh, mine you are no more.

Here, with sweet rays the sun is armed
After winter, now comes the flowered season;
Inebriated with sweetest love
The wind sleeps quietly in Clarida's bosom
At times, though, lascivious and perfumed waving
Makes the flourishing grass tremble.
The air, the ground, the sky breathe love
Burn, burn, burn, burn,
Burn, each heart
Burn, burn, each heart.

(translations Juliet Rothman)

Handel - 3 German Songs

Singe, Seele, Gott zum Preise
Sing, my soul, in praise of God,
who in so many ways makes all the world so beautiful.
Let him who delights our ears,
let him who enchants our eyes with his flowering woods and meadows be praised and magnified.

Süße Stille, sanfte Quelle
Sweet quiet, gentle source of peaceful calm:
My soul, my very soul is made joyful
when I, here in this time of toilsome vanity, contemplate that peace that awaits us for eternity.

Flammende Rove, Zierde der Erden
Flaming rose, worldly adornment,
the shining garden's bewitching glory:
Eyes that behold your splendor
must stand in wonder before your grace, created by the touch of God's hand.
Six Songs, Op. 90
Der Norden
Ihre Borschaft
Der Morgan
Der Vogelsteller
Der Sommernacht
Wer hat Dich hergeführt?

Jean Sibelius
(1865-1957)

Op. 18, 3 songs
On the steps
Before you
Trumpets

Paul Hindemith

3 songs after Jennifer Lynn

O John No
Drink to me only with thine eyes
The Sirens & The Bird

Folksong
Folksong

Julius Benedict

Photographing and sound recording are prohibited. We further request that audible paging devices not be used during performance. Paging arrangements may be made with the ushers.