ANNUAL NIGHT SHIRT PARADE "PUT ON"

All Slimes Out With An Little
Covering as Possible—Citizens Entertained.

The evening opened auspiciously with several of the orphans arriving on the spot, but it was not until the first of the night that the actual parade started. The parade consisted of about fifteen orphans, each of whom was wearing a costume made of old clothes and blankets. The orphans were led by a man who carried a pole and a lantern, and the procession wound its way through the streets of the town.

After the parade, a dance was held in the gymnasium, where refreshments were served and games were played. The evening ended with a bonfire, and the orphans and their friends retired to their respective homes.
THE TRADITIONS OF RICE are well-founded, and they have been built by the students upon the rocks, as solid as the Campanile, and the duty of observing them is held by every member of the Institute. If you properly foster and cherish these traditions, the university can not go astray and will not be delivered to the mercies of revolution.

On the other hand, ignore them for a week, and if the results are not immediate, the end will come in the shape of a fire, or an avalanche of black hats, or a storm of bricks.

"A university is truly only as strong as its traditions; and the concerted effort of one factious of students can overthrow in a month what the most ardent supporters of the university have been building for decades through the efforts of those traditions."

Respect above all our tradition of good ownership. When we win, cheer for the losers and when the laurels of victory fail to crown us, cheer for those so fortunate as to have gained them.

It takes a good sportsman to accept defeat gracefully, but it takes a much better man to take victory with the proper good judgment. Rice has built a brand for good, clean sportsmanship and will not allow any faction—unworthy the privilege of being associated with any institution in the world.

Our traditions are many, but sportsmanship stands above all and must and implicitly be observed.

"THE FAULTS OF OUR BROTHERS." CREATORS FAULT-no more than selfish, name. Charity and generosity go hand in hand, and are the inseparable and sublime virtues.

The Thresher is able to call to mind a number of individuals, with all that sign all their virtues cannot neutralize the fault. One of the most outstanding faults that comes every day before our eyes, is that of a Freshman, interested in his work, his surroundings, and in the upbuilding of the university.

For instance, the association that joins a literary club, or some campus society whose existence rests upon the qualifications of an individual. Sometimes by degrees upon their dozes and take in the newpaper. He takes an interest in athletics, is an lntelligent student, and sports, and above all desires the growth and expansion of his Alma Mater. To help him along, he offers his services to the college publications, plays baseball, band, and becomes such an admirer of General Johnston that he is welcomed by all the more reformed clubs and groups of the campus.

It is then that the change begins. The individual realizes his value and importance, he takes the worth of his abilities increases with his mind's eye. He starts the social and economic advantages of his alma mater, and then not that of the college, but often at its隈a.

Leaders are needed, but too many people confuse the idea that they are leaders when they are poor followers. It is only good followers that become good leaders.

Freshman, remember this: "Many men in greatness, some acquire it, and others have greatness thrust upon them." In your college life, if you merit greatness, it will usually be placed upon your shoulders, without your asking for it. As long as you work for the whole school, you will continue to receive the stamp of greatness, but when you begin working for yourself, "alone, sooner or later, " your stamp of greatness will be taken away.

The moral of this treatise is not to dishearten the leader, but to stimulate him. The idea is that selfishness ruins the stamp of greatness, and generosity will cause their servitude to be sought by all.

"A week is a year to a student, a day is a century to a man."

THE THRESHER. HOUSTON, TEXAS

SOCIETY AND CLUB PINS

All students and their friends are invited to be present at Mr. E. T. Kerley's unannounced wedding. The young lady is a Miss and the church is a cemetery.

The Baptists meet Sunday at Spring Avenue Church for worship. The Rev. Mr. Arthur Cain was elected president, Miss Clinton Morris, vice-president; Miss Maudie Adkins, secretary; and Mrs. Tyrus Trahan, treasurer.

The new building now being erected in the corner where the old frame church stood will be ready for occupancy about the first of October. The plan is specially fitted for black people as that are. The church expects to be at the service of institute students at all times and for that reason has chosen this location for the building.

The tennis party given Monday evening by the members of the St. Paul's Rice Class was attended by the class as a whole and friends and members of the class. A large number of new students were present and Mrs. Kingsbury and Miss Kingsbury, and Mrs. Bigham, teacher of the law, were in St. Paul's. They were all cordially introduced. They chose the overactress—enough said.

First Impressions: Debt is certainly a burden among us. We can't get paid in any sort of paper or money.

Second Impressions: Well, we're in the same fix. but so far we've only4 turned.

"The Overactress."

of this restaurant. You will probably wish it were necessary to do this, as it would be impossible to forget a place that serves such excellent meals at such remarkably reasonable prices. There have been a great many dismal and笙ed restaurants all the time.

Men created at Station by Rice Men

The Y. M. C. A. was something else this fall when it was announced for the first time in several years. The meeting, which was held at a dormitory on campus, and featured the boisterous airship, had been in the air since 1914. Upper classes did notsut the attention, and the non-students wishing to see the planes were turned away with the promise of another demonstration. Some of the old men on the faculty were present, and among them was noted the former president, Dr. R. W. Gardner. These friends being guests.

The campus was crowded with students and faculty members, and the atmosphere was electric. The meeting was the result of a long-planned campaign by the administration and the faculty to attract students to the university. The Y. M. C. A. has been instrumental in the growth of the university, and has played an important role in the development of the campus.

Tub was host at a dance at the campus, and the event was the culmination of a series of activities planned by the university administration to attract new students.

Among the features of the meeting were the display of the airship and the musical performance by the university orchestra. The airship was the main attraction, and the crowd was on the edge of their seats as it was serenaded by the band. The evening was a success, and the university is planning similar events in the future.

New appointments in the faculty

Many Old Men Raised New to Rice

In order to keep pace with the rapidly growing student body, the university has been making appointments to fill faculty positions. The following new men have been named to the post of chairman of the faculty, and the promotions awarded to the faculty members are as follows:

The university has been expanding rapidly, and the need for new faculty members is increasing. The university is committed to maintaining a top-notch faculty to serve the needs of the students.

Society clubs are reorganizing

Fraternity rush season is on

The student body is also looking forward to the fraternity rush season. The rush is a time when upper classmen, who have been in college for several years, get to know the new students and decide which fraternity they will join.

This year's rush season is shaping up to be exciting, and the students are looking forward to it. The fraternity rush season is an important part of college life, and it is a time when students get to know each other and form lasting friendships.

Q&A on campus

A recent survey conducted on campus revealed that 75% of the students are interested in attending a fraternity. The survey also showed that 60% of the students feel that the fraternity rush season is an important part of college life, and 40% of the students plan to attend a fraternity this fall.

The results of the survey are encouraging, and it is clear that the fraternity rush season is still an important part of college life. The students are excited about the prospect of attending a fraternity, and they are looking forward to the rush season with anticipation.

No Student Should be Without a Typewriter

The university is proud to announce a new initiative to help students get ready for their future careers. The initiative is called "No Student Should be Without a Typewriter," and it is designed to help students get ready for their future careers.

"No Student Should be Without a Typewriter" is a program that provides students with a typewriter at no cost. The typewriter is an essential tool for students who are looking to enter the workforce, and it is a valuable asset that will help them get ahead.

The program is available to all students, and it is a great way for students to get ready for their future careers. The program is funded by a grant from the government, and it is a great way for students to get ahead in their careers.

Conclusion

The Y. M. C. A. was a success, and the university is planning similar events in the future. The event was a great way for students to get ready for their future careers, and it was a success in every way. The new appointments in the faculty are a great sign of the university's commitment to maintaining a top-notch faculty.
