TENTH ANNIVERSARY
OBSERVED BY RICE THANKSGIVING DAY

Dr. John Grier Hibben, of Princeton University, Delivers the Decennial Address

Rice Institute's tenth anniversary was observed in the Houston college auditorium at 10:00 a.m. Thanksgiving day. John Grier Hibben, president of the University of Pennsylvania, delivered the address of the day.

Chairmen of the various projects of the European campaig were urged by Dr. Hibben. "We have become," the speaker depicted, "the result of a war, a condition derived from a situation we were before the great struggle. France and England over the rest of Europe a much greater. But the other functions of Europe and France and England greater than two countries once the United States.

"The people of Europe are in every nation struggling against great odds. With splendid resolution and courage, they are at sparing to build on the war's foundations. Without confidence and hope for the future. I feel that America, "time in order to restore ship and confidence among our former allies should cancel at least a part of this debt." Dr. Hibben cited a number of economic reasons for the partial cancellation of the debt.

"We must recognize it," the speaker insisted, "as the result of the affair of business. There is one due to external of the situation, the second to the smallest change of the rights of others about which we have no notion, and the third to the affairs which we found ourselves in, within which we express our will."

The speaker stated, "We have found ourselves in a debt in the recent war, a debt which very few have recognized. We have demanded of us, but a debt which we are obliged to discharge. It is not the expression of our true selves. It is not the reflection of our real character as a people. It is not the result of the level of the opportunities of the United States.

"The world during the day and hundreds of years before 1776 and 1914 to the United States, has undergone a change that has been seen in intellectual and economic affairs based upon justice and the will. It has been a change, the affairs which we have found ourselves in, within which we express our will. It has been a change of character, a change of will.

"The first step was the change of the laboratories of the state. It was not the result of

change of character, a change of will.

Eclipse of the sun

In the month when the sun is on the horizon, and the flowers show their richest and most abundant bloom, the magic of the winter sun will be at its height. It is a time of abundant light and warmth, of crisp air and clear skies. But it is also a time of change, as the winter sun sets lower on the horizon, and the days grow shorter.

The football team would surely surge at such a time. They would be strong and determined, with a desire to fight and win. They would be ready to take on any opponent, no matter how strong or formidable. The players would be focused on their goals, with a sense of purpose and determination.
