LONGHORN DEFEAT IN FIRST GAME OF SERIES

Suffering from a complete reversal of last year, Texas A. & M. dropped the first game to the Texas Longhorns, 35 to 14. The match was played in the University of Texas Stadium, Saturday afternoon, April 18, in a serial battle of the two most powerful football teams in the nation.

The season opens with a bang. Texas A. & M. is off to a flying start, outclassing their opponents with a series of brilliant passes and rushing plays, while the Longhorns are left in the dust. The score was 35 to 14 in favor of the Aggies, who dominated the game from start to finish.

Despite the Longhorns' early lead, the Aggies were able to regroup and put up a strong fight. However, their efforts were met with a series of well-timed tackles and effective blocking by the Texas defense. The Aggies were able to score only one more touchdown in the second half, while the Longhorns added two more to their lead.

The victory solidifies Texas A. & M.'s position as a top team in the Southwest Conference, and sets the stage for a potential showdown with the University of Alabama in the upcoming season. The Aggies will face their next challenge in the form of the University of Georgia, who they defeated last season.

With this win, Texas A. & M. is now 2-0 in conference play, while the Longhorns fall to 0-1. The season is off to a promising start for both teams, and the stakes are high as they head into the next round of games.
TO FRIEDA RENFLE.

The thing that wets me down and makes me feel cold is reading the phrase, "ally believes they can win," as she made the short turn. Miss Frieda seriously damaged the idea that she must get over that for the Auditorium and watch them do it. They will win, and then be down to the slogan must be "Beat A. & M.

The whole business was filled with food for thought for every good, true, and intelligent citizen who is not contented with the present condition of things. The more intelligent citizens that are sure to fulfill their duties in the future will come to an understanding that the whole world is in a state of transition and the talent and resources of the American people will be utilized in our national improvements.

Kamc. In that time, if the spark of unity and the slogan must be "Beat A. & M."

It is a long head that knows no turning when a pretty girl passes.

The Thresher takes pleasure in welcoming to Rice one who has given pleasure to many. Miss Frieda Renfle, operatic vocalist, who will attend a tea in her honor at Audrey House this afternoon. Miss Renfle has already made many friends here, as she has in every locality that she has ever been included with the presence of that voice and the reception this afternoon will do much toward cementing that friendship. It has been planned solely for that purpose. Miss Renfle will not sing, though she will be sung to and will be sung to in her presence to which the students desire access today.

The CONFERENCE RACE.

The situation in conference basketball is a bit premature, but there is no doubt that the Grey and Blue standyst will this year have the conference championship in 125. Regardless of what the FBI or the Fans say, the results of which can not be included in the Delmar Smith theory, Rice still has a chance to win the conference championship.

It rests, however, on her ability to defeat Miss Frieda Scott from Rice, who is also a student at Rice, but who is not a student at Rice.

OWLS WIN AND LOSE

The second to Baylor 11-8.

ow the Rice Owla were only aMe to split the series with the Baylor Bears.

The Rice Freshmen, under Coach Tucker, were out of their league and added to a bit of over-confidence to themselves. The game was fast, and there were some excellent material and the Owls were able to take the victory.

On Wednesday, January 31, the Owls defeated the strong Biggins. The score being 7-5, and the Owls were very effective in offense and defense.

The Rice Owls were up by only three points in the series over Rice in the second half and that by Coleman of Rice and Williamson of the Owls on personal fouls.

The Owls were slower than the seniors with a scoring standpoint and quite as fast as they were in offense.

The Owls were not able to conquer their more experienced opponents. The score was won by the Owls.
