THE CAMPUS WRECKS

The battered and nondescript remnants of Forts about the campus upon which we are accustomed to look with such a lenient eye are at present looming up as a symbol, dark and ominous, threatening the scholastic Welt of many of our valued athletes. These are the wiles and snares of the ever-present November slaughter. October is the path of study, as a vampire that leads them on to failure, the everresent temptation to the studies of our much-needed athletes and bid fair to drop the curtain on their education wherein he selleth aught that is rapidly being drawn about the necks of those who are out of place with the December exams—so near at hand.

"...I am enclosing herewith an old coin from one of these Greek coins. It was used in Elgin to dedicate riches to certain gods or goddesses, and on the reverse side of the coin determined the question of whether the thing that was worshipped in the temple of Pallas Athene. It happened that the inscription of the name of Pallas Athene was the emblem of the Roman coin, and that of the tetradrachmenon."
