STARTS SCHOOL FOR CHARLESTON

I noticed with some surprise a great change in the students that afternoon. The situation of the yearbook was, I must say, quite a shock. The whole staff was almost entirely new. I asked Mr. Frame, the yearbook’s editor, why this was the case. He told me that the previous year’s staff had been expelled due to their mismanagement of the publication. I was shocked to hear that such a thing could happen. The staff was composed of students who had previously shown a taste for almost everything except study. And with Experience comes wisdom, or so they say. At least, I hope so. The book now contained some truly insightful articles and stories. There was a particular piece about the history of the university that was quite fascinating. It seemed that the institution had faced many challenges over the years but had always managed to persevere. I was glad to see the students taking on such an important role in the education and growth of the institution.

The atmosphere was quite different from the previous year. The students seemed more engaged and were actively participating in the various clubs and activities. I also noticed that the students were more respectful of each other, which was a welcome change. It was clear that the students were taking their roles seriously and were committed to making the school a better place.

In conclusion, I believe that the new staff has done an excellent job of managing the yearbook. They have worked hard to ensure that the publication is of high quality and that it reflects the values and aspirations of the students. I look forward to seeing their work in future years and encourage them to continue their good work.

One Man’s Summer Vacation

HAVING over a year ago been promised a new and ample cabin cruiser, made ready, the trip was undertaken, although the weather was not at all favorable for such a journey. My companion was an expert pilot, and we took with us all the necessary provisions for the journey. We sailed from Charleston, and after a short time, arrived at the island where we intended to land. The island was covered with beautiful scenery, and the air was invigorating. We spent several days there, exploring the island and enjoying the beautiful weather. After a few days, we continued our journey, passing through many beautiful islands and reaching our destination, which was a small town situated on the coast. We arrived there in the early evening, and decided to spend the night there before continuing our journey.

The town was quite small, and the people were friendly and welcoming. We spent the night there, and the next morning set out on our journey once again. We sailed through many beautiful places, and the weather was perfect for our journey. Finally, we arrived at our destination, and we were able to dock our boat. The weather had been quite favorable the entire time, and we were grateful for the opportunity to have had such a beautiful and uneventful journey.

In conclusion, I believe that the summer was quite successful, and I am grateful for the opportunity to have had such a wonderful experience. I look forward to spending more time on the water in the future.
German Fellowship
Offered U.S. Students

New students with aspirations to study abroad may be interested in the following information which was presented at the annual meeting of the German-American Chamber of Commerce on March 15, 1957.

The German-American Chamber of Commerce has established a German Fellowship to offer to outstanding American students in Germany during the academic year 1957-1958. The fellowship is supported by adequate reasons for travel, and is open to American students from any college, university, or academy in the United States.

Applicants should be in their second, third, or fourth year of study and are required to submit an application. The application should include a transcript of the student's academic record, a statement of the student's reasons for seeking the fellowship, and a letter of recommendation from a member of the student's academic institution.

The fellowship is available to students who are interested in pursuing studies in the field of German language, literature, or history. It is open to students who are pursuing studies at the undergraduate or graduate level.

The fellowship is non-renewable and covers the cost of tuition, room and board, and other expenses for the duration of the academic year. The fellowship is renewable for a second year, subject to the availability of funds and the student's continued eligibility.

The deadline for applications is May 15, 1957. All applications should be submitted to the German-American Chamber of Commerce at 123 Main Street, New York City.

The Chamber reserves the right to review applications, and to award the fellowship based on merit. All decisions are final.

The German-American Chamber of Commerce is a non-profit organization that promotes trade and commerce between the United States and Germany. It is supported by a membership of American and German businesses and organizations.

A TIDY red tin of Prince Albert, to be exact. There’s the greatest little trouble-chaser in the known world. Smoke P. A. and pipe-gourches choose the nearest.

Yes, Sir, P. A. is right there with the Polly-anna stuff. Sunshine, gladness, the light heart, the bright smile. Because Prince Albert is the choicest, creamiest tobacco that ever hummed into a briar or corncob.

Smoke P. A. — and smoke. Cool, comfortable P. A. Fragrant, friendly P. A. Not a tongue- chaser or throat-parch in a ton of it. The Prince Albert process has the “No Admixture” sign on Site and Patch the day the factory opened.

Travel Around the World is a Story Better Told over a Grapefruit Hour

Mrs. R. C. Red Refers to the Memoirs of the E. R. L. S. on "Women of Two Continents," in her talk with Mrs. Red took the girls around the world by relating her experiences and incidents of personal observation. The travels began in the Hawaiian Islands and continued through Japan, China, India, Persia and France to England. Mrs. Red illustrated her talk with interesting brought from the two countries. There were scenes from India and Persia, antique mementos and souvenirs from Japan, and souvenirs from France and England. Mrs. Red ended her address with several rather light sketches of a Rice student's life, which the audience thought was quite hilarious to their presence.
