RICE Topics

Now that the sensational true story of the toothache of the victim of the race is out cleaning away, there are several other less sensational definitions distributed by print.

The report that some of the railroaders have some sort of reservations in regard to the future of the Rummage Fund Drive is quite probably premature.

It appears to have been the custom of, for at least 50 per cent of the staff to declare oneself to be unsuitable when the news is good and perfectly suitable when the news is poor, so it is quite probably premature to predicate by these near concerns.

So far so has been hinted that the Thresher staff neglected to do the best they could. As far as the news is concerned, nothing has been definitely announced.
WHY THE CRITICISM?
A recent article in a local daily newspaper remarked on the "idleness" of Rice students. It is not at all unusual for universities to be criticized for indolence and waste of time. Writers of these articles are not to be thought of as motivated by malice or intemperity or even an intent to reform. The writer of the article, Hart & Newsbaum, is trying to portray Rice. My impression is that very few professors that would consciously use newspaper slang in the little front page features that call forth these remarks.
Comments in the worthlessness of college students usually make attractive reading matter. A slight injunction of rebellion to lend the appearance of seriousness recommends mild attacks such as this one to minds which are prone to worry over university men and women.

The Press article does not carry enough weight to require an immediate answer. Put nothing to be gained by assuming that the superior air that labels adverse criticism as beneath notice.
Nothing is too insignificant to be ignored.

The general relaxed atmosphere of a college campus a short while after the end of exams furnishes a contrast with the fevered strain of the pre-exam period. Some go about their business or the pleasures with the damn in the background. Others settle down to a long, slow determined grind with the intention of retaining their position in their various walks of life. Whether students are apt to lack absolute accuracy.
