The courts—Rice Institute needs some more tennis courts on the campus. There are but six courts and some 600 students and professors who use them. Moreover, these six courts have been exclusive by the men who were not members of the Rice tennis squad. But these days are past. The Y. M. C. A. courts are now available to the members of the town.

As on the Rice courts, the players on the Y. M. C. A. grounds became so numerous the rates were raised, and the Rice players withdrew their memberships to the Y. M. C. A. tennis club.

The tennis courts—and it is a dire need. The courts must be built. There are but six courts and some 600 students and professors on the campus who desire to play. The faculty has posted upon the bulletin board the names of those students who will graduate.

There are 177 candidates for graduation this year. Of these 177 can take the degrees of Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science, or Bachelor of Music.

COLLEGIATE FLIVVERS

A brochure recently issued has announced that a symphony orchestra will be formed of all members of the freshman and sophomore classes, and that the symphony orchestra will give one concert during the spring semester.

March 17 will be the last day to purchase tickets for the symphony orchestra concerts. The symphony orchestra concerts will be held in the Field House on the campus.

This Week Will See Seniors Throw

E. W. Loomis started life as a farmer boy—a real "dirt" farmer—so did his parents and grandparents before him. Across the corn rows, however, he would catch sight of the road to the city. This kind of engineer would he, to become a "civil engineer"—and a civil engineer Loomis determined he would be.

At Delaware University, however, he got a job in the electrical laboratory—he played football, wrestled, was a member of the Commodores, ran the track and did a member of the student organizations. He studied electrical engineering, and several years later he was a manager of the Industrial Division of the New York Office—charged with responsibility for the sale of Westinghouse apparatus to all industrial customers in New York State and in the northern half of New Jersey.

Loomis has fifty-two men working under his direction. In three years he was head of a section of the industrial sales department. By 1922 he was managing the sales of three million dollars, and he was earning a salary of seven thousand dollars a year.

The subject of this week's column is the rise of a young man from the farm to the city. His salary is a little more than the average of all engineers and the prominence of his position is just what one might expect from a man who has been a farmer, a student, and a manager of the Industrial Division of the New York Office.
