They call it the “Pierce Type”

When the class of '15 at Maine was integrat-"ed, the same "Pierce" meant no more in the field of measuring than Sewnery or Jones. Today, however, if you’ll talk to such companies as the Duquesne Electric Company, The Southern California Edison Company, the Duquesne Light Company, or the United Verde Copper Company, you’ll learn that "Pierce" means a type of remote metering, which enables an engineer in a central dispatcher’s office to read the condition of a sub-station several miles away.

Superpower brought in the need for an improved method of remote metering, and R. T. Pierce, Maine ’15, in the employ of Westinghouse, devised it. He designed a system that operates on a new and different principle, and that has met with general acceptance in the Central Station field. He also was active in the recent re-designing of the entire Westinghouse instrument line. It was only a few months after Pierce had completed the grad- uate student course at Westinghouse that he was given an assign- ment in the instrument section of the engineering department. "He took it merely as a "fill-in" job. Soon he saw that instruments play a vital part in every electrical operation. As an instru- ment engineer, Pierce spent several weeks on the U. S. S. Tennessee and the Colombo during their trial runs. He has rights in the field of electric locomotives. He is in closer touch with radio than anyone else in the field. A design engineer comes con- tinuously in contact with sales negotiations, and Pierce’s con- tact with them proved to bene- fit that he was lately made head of the Instrument Section of the Sales Department, which means that he really has charge of this sale of all instruments to Westinghouse customers.

RICE CAMPOUS - GAME IMPRESSIONS

The Rice team looked wonderful in its new uniforms of dazzling gray and contrasting blue. Not so hard to keep those two home runs Wednesday his team gaze so attentively at the outer caps will be in evidence.

From the moment that Director Lee Chatham strolled upon the stage and assumed his directing posture on the small box, the air will be filled with sensation, because the Rice Campanile has been found to be entirely safe.

New overtures will be presented, new marches sung out, Maroon compositions introduced, and a number of popular jazz numbers will be played. The band will be completely out of uniform, with some of the men in tuxedos and some in tailored suits. Frequent changes from the band to maintain its high efficiency in revising difficult marches, drummers and overtures. Last fall the band made the trip to Austin with the band for the Texas Women's Club concert. Now the trip is in sight. The feasibility of employing a spring tour is being vigorously discussed and canvassed (by the band). The trip of an extended tour was dropped.

Several weeks ago, however, Legion of Honor President William Mannering invited the band to be one of a committee to receive some kind of food or drink for all rice students. A help to Galahad is in sight for all Rice students. The band will play the songs that they would play for a Big Dance where it will be most enjoyment, and the band will come back.

Nothing definite as to the amount of money that will be raised is certain. It was hoped that the Birmingham School of Music would be keen interest until the time for the big tour, but it is not certain for the next to the Big Dance. The Engineering School will be added to the band, knowing that both the bands of the show. The band will now play, and high school students that are here for the reasons promised a treat from the outside band (not cut-off).

In the near future the band will broadcast another concert from the Rice Campanile. The best concert from this year, will be broadcast. Those who could not be present, however, could not attend. The concert will broadcast every concert from the Rice Campanile. Those who could not be present, however, could not attend.

VOLUNTEERS: I say will be a very interesting tour next and I will enjoy the group. It will be an event of the greatest kind not more than a few weeks.
