HOUStONIAir GIVES BUILDING TO RICE

GRANT IS CAPTAIN OF GOLF TEAM

In all probability the Student Council will also set the date of the dance, and it is hardly to be expected that the school will have to be carried out in the general fashion of the past years. The announcement of the gift overstepping the bounds of the regulations is understood that the school will have to be carried out in the general fashion of the past years. The announcement of the gift overstepping the bounds of the regulations is understood that the school will have to be carried out in the general fashion of the past years.
Mr. Cohen's Philanthropy

The announcement of the contribution was made on the birthday of Mr. Cohen's mother. So in addition to the singular purpose for its making, it is a fitting annual observance of the occasion of her birthday in an exceptional manner. Moreover, his parents and their five other brothers, whose ages range from seven to one hundred years, are all still living. Aside from the material value of the donation which Mr. Cohen has made, the Thresher believes, Rice appreciates the gift doubly.

Another Riot!

MIDNIGHT last, in the shadow of Maryland's venerable slave church, some four hundred students of John Hopkins University engaged in a lively riot growing out of an attempt of the students to break up the freshman's annual dance. Heads were broken, arrests made, property damaged, the fire and police departments called out. An appeal made to control these explosions by localizing them as to time and place. Nothing further can be done in the way of making excuses for this opportunity of such an expenditure of power, and the irritation which its expression caused to the faculty, is still to be felt. Nor can any excuse be made for the manner of its expression, for the opportunity of such an expenditure will be past for them.

Mr. Cohen's Philanthropy

Full of the first time since the death of William Marsh Rice a contribution has been made to the building fund of the Institute. It remained for Mr. George Cohen, then who was many Houstonians many admirer, to take the long-shop for the students. The donation of $125,000 was made by Mr. Cohen of his own volition and without solicitation. And in a sense, as the Thresher believes, Rice appreciates the gift doubly.

Nothing can be said for the necessity for such an exhibition on the civic campus, for it is too obvious to require discussion here. Mr. Cohen has committed himself and the Institute to the belief that the enterprise which Mr. Cohen has entered in, opened, under the threat of being brought about by the students, will not be followed by the faculty for the enjoyment of such an expenditure will be past for them.

Mr. Cohen's Philanthropy

The previous 100 years of Rice University have been marked by such a series of disasters which has been the subject of discussion. As to the future of the school there is a definite indication that the new administration has already taken power, and that in such manner the Institute will be permitted to continue with its program of expansion and growth.

Mr. Cohen's Philanthropy

The recent death of William Rice marks the second in a series of contributions made by Mr. Cohen to the Houston Institute, one of which was the making of the great and successful campaign of 1909. It is now that the Institute is at the point of a new and final triumph, in which the difficulties of the past are to be forgotten and the future furthered.

Mr. Cohen's Philanthropy

In the history of the University there is no precedent which may serve to direct the donations of other philanthropists towards Rice. It is a notable fact that the Rice Institute, in its own way, has been the beneficiary of a number of such donations, and that the Institute is the mere result of the work accomplished.

Mr. Cohen's Philanthropy

Aside from the material value of the donation which Mr. Cohen has made, the Thresher believes, Rice appreciates the gift doubly.

Mr. Cohen's Philanthropy

Considering the facilities which Mr. Cohen has made available for the use of the students, the mixture is inevitably a combustible one and bound to explode occasionally.

Mr. Cohen's Philanthropy

When the heady sense of power which comes with one's first in-sight, the mixture is inevitably a combustible one and bound to explode occasionally.

Mr. Cohen's Philanthropy

But it appears to us, thousands of miles from the shipload of students, and without the knowledge of the Institute, that this contribution will start the ball rolling, and that a wave of similar generosity will follow.

Mr. Cohen's Philanthropy

There is much sage speculation: this, "lawlessness" will be the rising generation's curse.

Mr. Cohen's Philanthropy

The rise of the Rice Institute is being shifted to a new point, not affected by the difficulties of the past. The Institute is at the point of a new and final triumph, in which the difficulties of the past are to be forgotten and the future furthered.

Owl Tossers
Win and Lose
In Practice

The owl tossers were up on their games this last week when it came to hitting the target. There were three games situationed to be played amongst the four.

The final results were:

First game: Rice Field 3, North 0
Second game: Rice Field 2, North 1
Third game: Rice Field 5, North 0

In the first game, Rice Field was able to make the most of their opportunities. They scored three runs by hitting three doubles. In the second game, the score was tied at two runs each until the ninth inning, when Rice Field scored one run on a single and a hit by the catcher. In the third game, Rice Field scored five runs by hitting two triples and a home run.

The owl tossers had a winning record as a team this season, but the individual records were mixed. Some players had a strong season, while others struggled.

FARE COMEDY TO BE PRESENTED BY ENGINEERS' GROUP

F. W. Godsey Jr. to Direct
Play Assisted by Lillard

The farce comedy play to be presented by the Engineers' Group this afternoon is entitled "The Trojan Woman." It is one of the most popular plays of the season.

The play is presented by the group in a measure to its conflict with the "Student Life in Singapore," which is about to be presented by the Freshman Class of the University of Texas.

The play will be presented at the Rice Theatre at 8:15 this evening. It is a three-hour play with music and dramatic music to be presented in the usual manner.

The cost will probably consist of the cost of the rent of the theater, which will be at the usual rate for the theater, and the cost of the music and dramatic music to be presented in the usual manner.

Letters From Students

(The Post-Disciplined)

George R. Cohen, Houston's only newspaper, has announced that the gift of a $100,000 endowment will be given to Rice University through the "building project." This will be the first building on the Institute campus through subscriptions, and the funds are from the estate of Mr. Cohen, who died on March 31st.

It is somewhat beyond my means, so I am also fascinated with the desire to secure a building to carry on the Institute. It appears that the Institute has more money than it knows what to do with; but I am interested in educational Endowment.

Mrs. John W. Davis, who lives in Chicago, Illinois, and is the wife of the late Mr. John W. Davis, has given $5000 to the Institute, and one of the two boys of this Institute, and one of the students who comes to him.

The gift is in line with other gifts which the Institute has received, and I am always present at everything in the Charles University buildings, and I am interested in being an educational Endowment.

Dear Sirs,

I have acted wisely and well. In a sense, my zeal has been the only means we have to act on, one way or another. Mr. T. J. Hullah served as chief administrator and editor, and has acted with a great deal of care.

FAREWELL DATE

Dr. Will Durant

Everywhere, at the same time, the endowment of the Institute is made. It is not that the profs want to invest their money. The Institute is too well known to be able to invest, and has the building project on its hands. I am very glad to see this project.

The Institute now needs greater support. It is only a small part of the money that may be invested in the field of science and education. It is a small part of the money that may be invested in the field of science and education.

The Inheritance of the University

Dr. Lovett points out that the Institute has been very well supported. It is not that the profs want to invest their money. The Institute is too well known to be able to invest, and has the building project on its hands. I am very glad to see this project.
