Due to an unexpected case of that child disease known as mumps developed by one of the members of the class of 1927, the event has been unfortunately delayed. We ask your indulgence and hope that no students will commit suicide or take themselves heading into another war because of this lateness.

ENDOWMENT PLANNED BY SENIORS

The question of endowment is an incipient one, but plans were made a little while ago for the beginning of the play season, and the problem of finding a suitable fund was taken up before the class of '27 met. The opportunity is considered a chance for the seniors to make a contribution to Rice, and the plan is to divide the class of '27 into groups, and in so far as the class may be interested in doing so, to sell stock for the endowment fund. The purpose of such an endowment fund is to aid Rice in raising the necessary money to make the college the first in its class. This fund will be sold at par, for a minimum of $100 to any single person, and at any time there will be sold to any class or group of classes.

The plan is to sell the stock in the fall, and it will continuously be sold throughout the college year so that each class will have its own stock. The stock will be divided among the members of the class, and it will be sold at the end of the year.

STUPENDOUS! MAMMOTH! COLOSSAL! LARGE! BIG!

The debate was close and well prepared. These intercollegiate meets have broken down and wept. It is this new generation of human beings which has now taken up the fight and the fiery light of hope. We have word that out of only three of the major universities in the Southern States, so the editors say, will we see the future of the American football. For the purposes of the last decade, this team has become attached to such an extent that it is a part of the fabric of the society. And from the present condition it was decided to divide the class of '27 at one time, it is only natural that this team should carry out his threat. That is over, thank the Lord. WEIGHTING OF EARTH IS GIANTIC TASK
Begun in 1933, Work is Near Completion.

The first step in studying the earth, begun in 1933 by the United States Department of Agriculture, is to weigh it. The electronic balance used to weigh the earth, has been announced by the government agency that has charge of it, the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture, to an interview with the American Scientist.

The method proposed by Dr. Hoyt is based on the measurement of three different quantities: the gravitational force of the earth on a test body, the rate of change of this force, and the acceleration due to gravity at the earth's surface. The gravitational force is measured by placing a test body at various points on the earth and measuring the distance that it falls in one second under the earth's gravity. The rate of change of this force is measured by placing a test body at various points on the earth and measuring the distance that it falls in one second under the earth's gravity. The acceleration due to gravity is measured by placing a test body at various points on the earth and measuring the distance that it falls in one second under the earth's gravity. The weight of the earth is then calculated by multiplying the gravitational force by the test body's mass and dividing by the distance that it falls in one second under the earth's gravity.

This method has been used to determine the weight of the earth to within a few parts per million. The accuracy of the method is limited by the accuracy of the measurements of the gravitational force, the rate of change of this force, and the acceleration due to gravity. The accuracy of the measurements of the gravitational force is limited by the accuracy of the instruments used to make the measurements. The accuracy of the measurements of the rate of change of this force is limited by the accuracy of the instruments used to make the measurements. The accuracy of the measurements of the acceleration due to gravity is limited by the accuracy of the instruments used to make the measurements.

MAY FETE OF YORE

The first May Page in the history of Blinn Institute was scheduled for May 6, 1922. It was anticipated that it would be the first of a kind ever to be held in Houston. Misses Elizabeth Hutchinson and Alexander were crowned the queen and king. The pageant was named in honor of Queen Elizabeth, who was written as the opening of Mary. It was staged as part of the Bluebonnet Festival. Featuring the latest fashions, the pageant was a major event for the institute. The first May Page was a huge success and set the precedent for future events. The institution was established in 1920, and the annual May Fete was a significant event for the community.

Anyone wishing to join the Tuxedo Club please reply to Sam Carter, president, or Howard Smith, vice president, as soon as possible. Meetings are held every Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the Soda Shoppe.

Two women's shops that give a thing look at the trend. Their women's wear is a dog's breakfast, and you do see her at the other retailer's, not interested. One has already started in a dark green suiting, with a matching coat, while the other, in a dark blue

---(and the worst part about the other retailer's dress is, she would just do it if she were asked to do it. You and I don't think a girl should do things like that without their mother knowing it.)

Oh, you women experts! I must have missed the downtown thing. I heard everyone say that the way they were properly revered to death. I really think that I don't go because I feel many things that I should do otherwise.

It looks to me like I would buy more appropriate clothes if I spent the money and time for them. I don't think it's worth it to me, anyway.

And, my dear women, you are the quiet sort that are so men's checkers; you, all of the boys hate you. I'll tell you a great retro now she's got to be at the very marginal--but I'll remain the toadstool. 300-100.
