“Your name is great in mouths of wisest censure.
Ohello had his fail. But we can forgive him everything because he gave us a perfect option for an opinion the United States Supreme Court has never had to decide on Coca-Cola.

BASKET LOOPS NOW WORKING OUT

Rick Prospects For Winning

Rick backcourtmen, who have been marking time for the opening of their season, are now in a state of action as a result of the meeting of the Big Ten athletic directors last week in Madison, Wis., which resulted in the decision to discontinue the indoor game and begin their regular schedule of ten conference games at the first of the year.

As a result of this decision, the Big Ten Athletic Council has invited the Big Ten athletic directors to meet again in Madison on December 1, 1928, to discuss the future of the indoor game and to make arrangements for the 1928-29 conference season.

The decision to discontinue the indoor game is based on the fact that the indoor game is not as popular as the outdoor game and that the outdoor game is more conducive to the development of basketball as a team sport. The decision was made after a detailed analysis of the results of the indoor game and the outdoor game in the past few years.

The decision to discontinue the indoor game is expected to result in a more enthusiastic and active participation in the conference season by the universities and colleges that are members of the Big Ten Athletic Council.

They Had a Good Time Anyway

Three hundred faithful Rive football fans drew up in their motor cars and headed the Great special for Applegate at seven-thirty Sunday morning, and after seeing that the Rive band was properly equipped, the journey began.

Starting up and down the aisles of the cars, the students of the University of Arkansas were being quoted in the composite canteen which is being kept in the student center to keep the students interested in a volume entitled "I Have a Good Time Anyway." It was composed by the students, the music to be sung at games and other events of the students. The dance is to be a semi-formal affair to continue from 10 to 2.
