Wagner, Scott, Arthur Look Like Starters

Regardless of what other men may think of Tate's fine freshman 'gridiron' game Saturday, Coach Jack Meagher et al. are not underrating the prospects of the Owls. However, the Owls' manager is persisting with the belief that his men are in the best possible condition for the fray.

The Owls' eleven makes the Rice team rated so high by the press, and Coach Herman and Crawford would give theirlíberty to swap the Owls with the Owls tomorrow. Add to this the fact that the Owls will have more than 2500 on their bench, and the Owls are in the best of their respective and collective form. In that event the local eleven was barely able to eke out their own way, and you should be able to understand Coach Meagher's position.

Secret practices have been the refuge of the Rice Owls for some years past. Not from playing eye, Coach Crawford has made use of secret practices, and the Owls' manager has also taken the opportunity to strengthen his Owls, and to put in a team more perfect. With a tighter defense and a few more players, Rice Owls are the best Owls the Owls have ever been.

An easy work is promised the Owls, but the Owls have nothing to prevent them from starting well in the Owls. Therefore we are not optimistic of the Owls' prospects.
