Debaters At Rice Defeat L.S.U. Squad

Crocker, Jones and Jones Win Elimination Match Debating Questions

Johnny Crocker, William J. Jones and E. A. Jones of the Debating Society of Rice Institute, won a team elimination match over two different reflectors. The Louisiana State University team lost last night in a debate at the Tulane annual meeting upon the efficiency of the question. The judges ruled that the United States should agree to the conclusion of the International Debt.

The L. S. U. debaters, Leon Rov, Walls and Leon Moore, met the Rice team in the first debate of a tour for a new deal in international relations at the College of the United States.

Every little step toward the reparation of international finance and the explanation of the complexities and intricacies of trade, exports, imports, income tax returns and for a new deal in international returns is said to have been taken by the Rice team in the first debate of a tour for a new deal in international finance.

"Lockiness"

That school as well as our country is in need of men and women who possess that quality known to the majority of people as "recreational." The problem is not to find many students with the ability to "recreationalize," but to find a few who can show that rare ability to "recreationalize" in a manner that is both beneficial to themselves and to the rest of the student body.

"Bathie" and Hands never save us.—Dr. Joel B. Hayden.

Although the news affects only a minority of the student body, it is a fact that every student is interested in the events of the day. The news affects not only the student body, but the faculty and staff as well. This is true of all news, not just that which affects the student body.

Professor Gives Rules For Dress

Says Woman Should Dress Out Back of Personality In Clothes

New York (AP)—American women should dress out the back of their personality in clothes to attract the attention of men, according to a recent study by Dr. L. P. Gardiner, professor of psychology at the University of North Carolina. He states that men are attracted to women who dress in a way that reflects their personality and interests.

In another study, Dr. Gardiner found that when women wear clothes that are too tight or too revealing, they are less attractive to men. He suggests that women should consider the fit and comfort of their clothes, as well as their personal style and preferences, when choosing what to wear.
