CLUBS IN STUDENT LIFE

We understand that a number of Rice campus clubs are on the march. There is a tendency to go on an order because of lack of interest among prospective members. The reason is very well justified by students for not joining clubs, they were in last year is a desire to arrive more time on their work.

We do not believe this reason sufficient. Campus clubs are distinct from the other clubs in so much that they are a part of their social life in the student body. They require more time and effort. In the majority of cases, they are the result of the student body's desire to be more active in the campus life.

An active student body is essential for the development of a campus. It is the responsibility of the student body to be active in their campus. They should be more active in the student body's work and the student body should be more active in the student body's work.

In conclusion, we believe that the student body should be more active in their campus. We believe that this will lead to a more active student body.

A Freshman's Impression of Rice

By Alexander Lee

As a new student at Rice, I was very impressed by the campus life. The campus is large, it is green, and it is full of students. The campus is a place where you can find new friends and new experiences.

The campus is full of students. There are many students in the dormitories, in the classrooms, and in the libraries. There are also many students in the athletic fields and in the laboratories. The campus is a place where you can find new friends and new experiences.
