The Gasser
A lot of people seem to think that the whole sales and service business has gone from a science to an art. Not so, say sales managers. To them, knowing about their product is the vital first step. And that means knowing about their product, and what they can do for the cost-conscious consumer.

A strategic point in the battle for sales

Today's intense competition calls for new and more effective merchandising methods. For example, the "Where to Buy It" section of the telephone book. Here local dealers are listed beside the trade-marks of advertised products, such as Plymouth, Greyhound Lines, Exide, RCA Victor. This means that buyers, who want to cut down on hard-won dollars, are pressed to come back. We must applaud this. If we're going to win, we're going to have to beat the competition. But first, we have to learn the business.

BELL SYSTEM

Take a Trip Home by Telephone—Tonight at Half-Past Eight!
Wanted to know about something, it was... well, maybe it's just a little... um... different. For instance, I saw a sign that said, "A sensible package: We wanted to sell it for 10 cents, so we put Granger in a sensible soft foil pouch—easy to carry and keeps the tobacco just exactly right—just like it was made."

Granger... good tobacco... Wellman Method... cut right... packed right. And there is this much about it:

We have yet to know of a man who started to smoke Granger who didn’t keep on. Folks seem to like it.
