Without vacuum tubes. Long Distance service would handle he no business at all. So the telephone company has developed "repeaters" or amplifiers at 50 mile intervals along the line, thus making a direct connection from coast to coast.

With many tolls and in tunnel, individual performances must be almost perfect or cumulative distortion would render speech unintelligible. The non-fading home connections are, therefore, an achievement of the skill and in making Western Electric equipment.

Manufacturing steel all Bell System apparatus, Western Electric contributes much to the quality of telephone service.
