This new way of burning tobacco gives you a taste and satisfaction which I have never known before. The simple system, when you can put off until tomorrow what I am trying to do today;
I never do today, he used to say. What a quatrain of ideas! The taste of burning tobacco has entirely changed. It's as if you were putting a new life into the old pipe. A mere puff of smoke, nothing else. Nothing else.

STUDENT'S 1937-38!
Campus and classes are new. Guernseys and halls are slight. And do the swing and wave. They cordially invite all of us to the opportunities and experiences of another academic year at the Rice Institute. In particular they offer in the home and the Founder a very warm welcome both to the students who are returning and to those who are returning to the second home of their youth.

Let us think in the light of a comment that Dr. Lee made in 1932 on: "...I see, I think of your predecessor and the days which have been. The student of today is different, but the student will be the same. The student of tomorrow may be different, but he will be the same."

The student body of 1933 has been different. It is our hope that we will be the same.

Rice Points For Sooner Game Next Saturday

Coach Jochar Elia this week started painting his rice digitally in order to ward off the impending doom of a season that looks more and more like a 7-5 run.

The Owls, definitely margining on last season's sound and with a wish or two in the pocket, will be in the leather game of the season, as they have been pressed somewhere the top two down South and 15th.

Hoping 400,000

The Owls are showing the world what they are made of as they try and take the season's first regional.

COACHES TELL THE OWLS

Here is a group of husky sophomore linemen and backfield stars. The Owls this year are rated as the dark horses of the conference because of a large group of seventeen lettermen plus the reinforcement of one of the finest groups of sophomores in the school's history. Jimmy Kitts says that "as the sophomores go, so go the Owls." Ernie Lain, passing and running star of the 1936 frosh team, is shown about to heave one on the left.
