CONSTITUTION OF HONOR COUNCIL UP FOR VOTE MONDAY

Amendment on Method Of Nominating Members Is Proposed

Students will now Monday as a proposed amendment to the Constitution of the Honor Council which provides that only members of the outgoing council will be eligible for membership in the Honor Council. The amendment, recommended by request of the members of the council, was presented by James O. Heffernan of the Student Council, which has now submitted it to the student body.

According to present Honor Council Constitution, a three-fourths majority of the students voting is required for approval of amendments to the Constitution. The proposed amendment reads:

"In order to provide a three-fourths majority of the student body with a chance to ratify or reject proposed amendments to the Constitution of the Honor Council, the following amendment is presented: As presented by the present council, the Constitution of the Honor Council shall be modified to read: 'The Amendment on the Constitution of the Honor Council shall be ratified or rejected by a three-fourths majority of the students voting in the election. The vote shall be held according to the elections procedures of the Rice Student Council.'"

The amendment was recommended by request of the Student Council, which has now presented it to the student body.

The proposal was recommended by the Student Council, which has now submitted it for consideration by the student body.

THE STADIUM DREAM
At Library Avenue, you will be able to sit at a Rice table and smoke, but that is the best a student who has just turned out of his dormitory can do. There is no place to wash up and no place to get anything for your pockets except in the dining hall.

The students are trying to get a place of their own to study and a number of them have been working for weeks to get the necessary funds. They have a place in mind and they are trying to persuade some of the preachers to give them the use of it for the season. They need a place where they can study and where they can get something to eat besides the dining hall.

Three Men Played Big Part In Rice Growth In Different Way

The three principal men, the Chamberlin brothers, Dr. Reed Kellogg and Kenneth Rice, were the guiding forces behind the growth and development of Rice Institute. The Chamberlin brothers, under the leadership of Dr. Chamberlin, provided the financial backing and the vision to establish the Institute. Dr. Kellogg served as the first president of Rice College, and his leadership and dedication were instrumental in the early years. Kenneth Rice, a prominent businessman and a member of the Rice family, contributed significantly to the financial stability and growth of the Institute.

Rice Institute was established in 1912, and its early years were marked by financial challenges. However, the Chamberlin brothers, under the guidance of Dr. Kellogg, provided the necessary support to keep the Institute afloat. The Chamberlin brothers were also involved in the development of the Rice Stadium, which was a symbol of the Institute's growth and success.

These three men played a crucial role in the growth and development of Rice Institute, and their contributions continue to be remembered and celebrated. Their vision and dedication paved the way for the Institute's transformation into a leading educational institution.
