Eleventh Engineering Show Opens This Afternoon

Marvels at Engineering Show

A quarter-inch scale of an actual industrial engine. A golf ball was attached to the end to illustrate the action of the engine. A kerosene lamp was suspended from the ceiling. A telephone and assorted equipment were displayed. The psychology department will exhibit which they will have will be the exhibits for those interested in that field. James A. S. Baker, president of the Rice Institute, and a veteran in the long flight that has brought the Thresher Engineering to a successful completion, will preside at the Eleventh Thresher Engineering Show at 2 p.m. today, from the outdoor arena of the Rice Institute.

Many other students have signed themselves for a pitch battle at Monday's election since the return of that ballot, filled with over 200 signatures and for that reason Miller was the third man in every race except that of cheerleader, but his entry that race would not have resulted in a run off since the cheerleading race is a plurality one in which the top three men become cheerleaders and the fourth place gets the job.

The two men up for election in the business department are the Thresher race, traditionally known along with the Cameron race, as the most competitive in the student body. The two races are held by the withdrawal of Miller's petition, settled down to a two-way race.

One of the most interesting exhibits in the biology department will be the unusual removal of cataracts from pigs' eyes. Y. O. Smith and Louis B. Smith will demonstrate the effects of the removal on the eyes of the pigs.

Krog is a Newspaper Man

F. MURDY is recognized in considering a candidate for the editorship of The Thresher, he must have more experience than anyone else. The kind of staff you have, the kind of newspaper you want to publish, and the kind of newspaper you feel can be most accurately given by the man who has been in the...
