Game With Longhorns Highlights Week
As Owl Basketeers Continue Struggle
For Honors in Conference Cage Race

By Misted McCall

Friday and Saturday nights will see our Owls moving into Fort Worth and Dallas to meet TCU and SMU on their own home courts. By defeating both these opponents, Coach Joe Davin's squad can step into possession of second place in the race for the league title.

The Frogs, against whom the Owls play Friday night, are led by their tree-top tall captain, Zeko Chronister. This is the same Chronister who played end on the TCU football team during the latter part of the season. In the five league games he has played in, he has scored 30 points.

STILL FOR FROGS

At present TCU is in sixth position in the conference, having won only one game while losing four. The team has rolled up 291 points to 273 for their opponents.

When Rice goes to Dallas Saturday night it will be for their second game against SMU. The Ponies, under the tutelage of Coach Jimmo Stewart, will be fresh from a game with the present loop leader, Texas University. Last week the Ponies came off second best in a two-game series with Arkansas. The exhibitions, ending 66-56 and 74-46, led Coach Stewart to comment that he

Mr. and Mrs. P. T. Estes were right! You should have seen the crowd at the Annex. A $35 engagement ring is worth it; congratulations to the happy couple. There was a wonderful-looking boy of women and congratulations to Hume for being so young enough to go to senior. From the looks through the lenses of those cameras, thank goodness it wasn't a gold one, eh? Marjorie? Suzanne Nabor

The Houston Symphony Orchestra had three famous musical artists for its opening program Monday night. The program was marked by a fine instrumental combination, which had to its credit the privilege of playing in the Houston Auditorium. The orchestra is highly necessary and desirable, but it is generally recognized that it is a very difficult thing to supply a tonal mass of great importance to the orchestra. All in all, the performances turned out to be a great boost for the orchestra.

All of our boys have played grand basketball since the opening of the season. The outstanding offensive players have been Henry and Darling, with Thomas giving wonderful support. The best floor work so far this season has been turned in by Suman, Darling, and Thomas. Mackenzie has been excellent at guard, Hilton and Roach have had a fine time at guard, and the performances they have turned in would be a credit to any team.

Let's continue backing our basketball team by coming out to the games and cheering for them. The student body has done a good job so far and we know that their support will be even better in the future.

The biggest job of the civilian students at Massachusetts State, from the immediate, military point of view, is to assure, a good job so far and we know that their support will be even better in the future.

VOTE FOR BILL Jamison

by Mildred McCall

The 55-55 tie that in College Statigic—Saturday night, according to some who were in attendance, could scarcely be called a basketball game. It has been variously described as a farce, an attempt at year-round football, and just plain sorry sportsmanship on the part of one side. The Aggies, apparently knowing they had no hope for victory in any other way, resorted to a singular method of guarding, intending to stop Bill Henry. Too bad the sharecroppers—worse luck next time!

PALS Come Up With 24-21 Win Over EBLS Team

Last Wednesday night saw the PALS basketball team make a comeback to win a 24-21 decision over the EBLS and even the play-off series at one victory each.

As is always the case when these teams meet, it was a nail-biter all the way. At the half the PALS led 13-6, but the sharp-shooting EB's closed the gap and by the beginning of the fourth quarter it was to go, the score was tied at 21-21. "Little Red" Lindley lost the game for the PALS with a free throw and a foul goal in the closing minutes.

Led by Richard Young, the PALS scored 13 points in the fourth quarter to stake their claim for the championship, but the Owls were not to be denied.

Despite Football Tactics

by Bruce Meyers

With seulement playing the last eight minutes, Joe Davis' Rice Owls scored an easy 63-33 victory over an important Texas Aggie quintet last Saturday night at College Station. Ringsated Bill Henry, playing only three-quarters of the game, rang up 27 points to hang on to his comfort.

The issue was never really in doubt.
