Editors' Qualifications

Monday the Rice Institute student body will be given the opportunity to go to the polls and elect student body officers for the coming school year. Students will be chosen to fill positions on the Student Council, to serve as class officers, Honor Council representatives, Assistant Business Managers and Assistant Editors of both The Thresher and the Campus and Tail-leader. This is quite an important list of candidates to be elected by the student body.

The student body presidents become the governing officials of all student activities as well as the heads of the academic boards of the Institute. The policies of these determine the activities of the organizations on the campus, the upholding and enforcement of the student constitution and other issues that affect the students of Rice, both directly and indirectly. Therefore, every student vote.

A candidate for an office must be capable of holding the position and must have a record that would justify his taking office. He must be more than a letter-man in athletics, or a chronic activities man, or a popular campuslife supported by a strong faction. All of these do not make him capable.

What does he actually know about the student activities? How well would he be able to work toward the best interests of the student body? Has he lived up to the standards of personal integrity and to Rice's own standards? Has he upheld at all times the provisions of the Institute? Has he contributed to the welfare of the Institute? Is his scholastic record one that reflects credit on himself and his ability?

ELLINGHAM LEADS BLUE DOLPHINS OVER TULANE WAVE

Led by the fine passing of Ellingham the Owls ruled in a 26-6 victory over Tulane's Green Waves in New Orleans last Saturday before a crowd of 17,000 at Tulane's 25,000-seat Cotton Bowl. Ellingham, a 6'1/2, 190-pound sophomore, made a grand slam against the Owls. Ellingham's pass to Eikenberg was the key play of the game. Ellingham and Eikenberg hooked up on two of the Owls' three touchdowns. The fighting defenses of both teams played a major role in the final score. The Tulane defense was able to hold the Owls to three points in the second quarter to push the Dallas Naval Air Station, which was not here last year. The Owls looked ready for conference play, which starts next week.

INTERRUMALS

The Rice Owls scored on a 46 yard pass from quarterback to Eikenberg at 14:00, 13:00, 11:00, and 9:00. The Rice defense was able to hold the Owls to only 13 points in the third quarter. The final touchdown came as the Owls looked ready for conference play. The Owls led 25-0 at the half, and the final score was 25-6. The Owls had a good game plan, and the Owls were able to score in the second half to push the Dallas Naval Air Station, which is not here last year. The Owls looked ready for conference play, which starts next week.
