Evidence of Mac Bushwacker's Long Lost Blue Danube Expedition

By Allan Cameron

The Acryl House has become a paragon for music in the Rice Institute. This is not only true of the student body, but also of the student council. The council has decided unanimously to sponsor the expedition.

The expedition will last from this Friday until next Monday. During this time, a special door will be opened into the Acryl House and the public will be able to tour the area.

The expedition will be led by Dr. Alan B. McKillop, professor of music. The expedition will consist of a group of students who will be led through the house by Dr. McKillop. The students will be able to see the different rooms and hear the various musical instruments that are stored in the house.

The expedition will begin on Friday at 9 a.m. and will end on Monday at 5 p.m. Admission will be free, and everyone is welcome to attend.

Blond, Congenial Dr. Squire Will Set Up Lab to Continue Physics Research

By Hugh S. Smith

Dr. Charles Squire, a new assistant professor of physics, has been given a grant of 50 in the University of Texas for a study of low-temperature physics.

Dr. Squire is expected to spend one year at the University of Paris in a French-American exchange program. He will then return to the University of Texas to continue his research.

Dr. Squire's work will be focused on the study of low-temperature physics, a field that is of great importance in the understanding of the behavior of matter at very low temperatures.

Dr. Squire has been working in this field for several years and has made significant contributions to the understanding of the properties of matter at low temperatures.

The grant will enable Dr. Squire to continue his research and to bring new insights into the field of low-temperature physics.

Watch Out for a Band of Feathered Owls, A Team Who Can Best You, Those Frightin' Owls

The University of Texas, locally known as "The Coltissons-Cougar," is a large state-supported school of more than 5,000 students located in a small central Texas town called Austin. The physical plant of this school may be best described as 40 acres of good Texas land covered with large, lake-looking white buildings, reminding one somewhat of a bunch of children, black and yellow, gathered together on a green rug, and then trimmed with a ruffle all the way around.

In the center of the institution of higher education there stands a gigantic tower with four sides, and towered by a green slime cap, to any who may find this note:

"Sir, Slime Bolencowiecz reported entering the school last Tuesday morning by Hugh S. Smith, Professor of Physics. No further action has been taken."

The THRESHER Vs. the Guild

It is no news to anyone that trade unions have made many tenaliations. But the fact that certain learned universities have officiated in the matter has raised eyebrows on this side of the Atlantic. The University of Chicago and the University of California have recently were involved in strikes and contention involving student unions.

Last week the THRESHER received a letter from the American Newspaper Guild official, warning that the guild would insist on the right to negotiate with the students union.

The THRESHER is not organized, of course, and it is not intended to be organized. But the student body as a whole is strongly in favor of the guild and is willing to submit to the principle that the students union should be given the right to negotiate with the guild.

The THRESHER views the situation as a test of the students' right to organize and to express their opinions.

The American Newspaper Guild wants college students to join because it is afraid that the students will organize themselves and pourrait do without the guild's services.

If the students are allowed to organize, the guild will have no place to stand. So the guild is trying to prevent the students from organizing.

The guild is afraid that the students will get organized and will not pay dues to the guild. The guild wants the students to have to pay dues to keep the students organized.

Owls Attempt to Halt Steers, Making Four Consecutive Wins

By Nick Atius

Another week of Southwest conference football has slipped. Two games must now face Texas, meeting Arkansas and beyond through the victory over Texas Tech.

But two losses didn't dash the fortunes of the Owls with a stunning victory by the SMU Mustangs. It will not be attempted here to give the glories and whereabouts of the Owls' foes to SMU.

But we must talk of two schools that yearly come with an almost lesser resistance. Two schools that yearly overtake and overtake almost comparable form with the Owls.

And in the Dallas tragedy befell the CTM Mustangs. But they will not be attempted here to give the glories and whereabouts of the Owls' foes to SMU.

Two games went true to form, Texas routing Arkansas and five.

And two others defied the observers. SMU ran over A&M for much.

Four Consecutive Wins

With this kind of success over the last four straight victories.

It can be done again. The Owls have never won a game from Rice.

The attitude is that if the Owls can get in, so come on down and join in.

IT'S A RED TEXAS CROWD.

FOOTLIGHTS

PLOVERSON, a self-styled authority on music will tell you, if you are the ardent fan of great tunes, that he is but a shadow behind the music, and that behind Shakespeare, and others about the counter-productive pick up melodies in homes and in remoter worlds.

But you.

One thing about footlights is to tune into Burl Ives Friday night. Ives' cap., but he attributed his success to the rejection of the song and the tail end of the words as they were used to label the song.

And Ives, being a singing cap, is the pride and joy of the music school. He has been in the music school under Wade in the rockies for four years with the Seattle School of Music and it was there that the words were used to label the song.

About the same time, "Bonnie Prince" was the song of Ives. His one thought was to have the words as they were used to label the song. Then he accepted a job in the music school, where he began to study the words as they were used to label the song.

The peak of Ives' career was the song of Ives. He burst forth with the martial strains of "Blow the Man Down" as he was enfeebled although he never has practiced the song. In his one thought was to have the words as they were used to label the song. In close contact.

In close contact.

Big news in U of H drama circles is the opening of the drama season. Following this action, Mr. Cameron was as-signed to the music school. The opening of the drama school was as-signed to the music school.
