Congratulations Freshmen

Last Saturday the Freshmen class put on a very successful show of originality and spirit. Election candidates staged a campaign rally, which included everything from prancing and leaping by a line of hooded and masked human-gargoyle platforms upheld by the candidates themselves.

It is interesting to remark that it was a good thing the first meeting of a class and its respective officers had been held. The Freshmen Committee for, they are a group which must be the real driving force behind any kind of university life that is to come.

The interest shown in the election was very promising that even in the lowest of our classes, 80% went to the polls. This is a far bigger turnout than is usual in campus elections.

The Freshmen are doing an excellent job toward preserving the school spirit and enthusiasm.

I Met a Man Who Said...

I met a man who said...

I missed out on all my college days. You see, I didn’t study till quite all the way. Working my way through school took all my time, or I told myself it did. I was too busy earning my money to study. And it’s funny, but do you know I turn away now and I said. I couldn’t do it if I had to do it now.

It seemed to me a lot of foolishness, the way they used to talk about going to college — chums slap each other on the back and say, “Here comes the old man who said.” I only said a little because I missed out on all that, and I find myself wishing I could go back to college and live those college days again.

I found a man who said...

I missed out on my college days. You see, I didn’t study till quite all the way. I never really got acquainted with the library. Or with a textbook.

I guess the only things I learned were things I got on the street, and a lot of things I learned, I learned at home. I told myself that people did that sort of thing after they graduated. I should have moved to another school, but I did through some way without ever realizing it.

And, it’s funny, but do you know I feel kind of regretful now whenever I talk to a scholar. I feel as if I missed out on all that. And I find myself wishing I could go back to college and live those college days again.

How many operators will we need NEXT YEAR?

This is but one of the many questions telephone men are called upon to answer.

Part of their work has always been to anticipate demands for service — to determine what additional equipment must be provided, what new construction will be necessary to handle the constantly increasing demands for service.

Careful planning in every phase of telephone work requires the services of many qualified men. For these, this growing business offers the opportunity for active, interesting careers.

The whole performance was one of the most stimulating ever offered to Houston symphony goers.

Mr. Neale played a little Bruckner, and during the week, one of the most outstanding of Boston's "Symphony Fantastique" and Brahms' "Piano Concerto in B Flat Major", with Mr. Neale Hammett at the keyboard.

COUNCIL MEETING

Honor Council's report next week on the question, "When does this library open for service?"

A question of time, strangely enough, was agreed on by all six council members to say. "When does this library open for service?"

"We'll be better than having to run across the street. Sandwiches and a coke are nice, but what about the freshmen? It's going to be a king and thoughtful pause, "A machine would be swell." And after the council voted for the fully-equipped soda fountain, the question of time, strangely enough, was agreed on by all six council members to say. "When does this library open for service?"
