"No Serious Objection" Found In "Guidance"...

In a short, well-attended meeting Thursday, the Student Council adopted a report of the Campus Guidance Committee which was submitted to the President of the Senate and the freshmen. The report stated that the investigating committee had "no serious objections" to the activities of the freshmen Guidance Committee. A recommendation was also made that future Guidance committees be organized as a part of the Student association.

The investigating committee also read a statement to the Council from the students who were in charge of the sale of cape, hat, and suspenders to the freshmen. Honors of excess profits up to 60% had caused the investigation, but the committee found that these rumors were false and no action was necessary.

Bob Hammond, chairman of the Election committee made a recommendation which the council adopted. There will be held, a meeting of the Freshman Guidance committee on Tuesday, for the election Monday because of the absence of class lists. The tables will be in front of Anderson Hall.

Arising upon a lengthy motion by J. B. Bledsoe the council decided to request a committee composed of 3 council members and 2 students on the Senate to investigate the year book and try to work out such problems as contemplated debts, commercial help available for the editor and business manager. No committee was appointed pending a choice of representatives from the Campus.

Train Procedure Outlined

By Herman Howes

One of the weak points of Rice's Honor System in the past has been the reluctance of the students to report violations of the Honor System to the Honor Council. There has been a lack of knowledge as to what happens when an accusation is received. To make this better understood, here is a sample of just what does happen when a violation is reported.

An unsigned copy of the accusation is read to him. The chairman outlines that he may plead GUILTY or NOT GUILTY.

If the plea is guilty, the Council will decide immediately upon his penalty, the minimum of which may be suspended from the Engineering College.

If the plea is "not guilty," a trial will be held not less than one week prior to the date of the hearing. He will then be notified that he may introduce any witness to the Council other than character witnesses, that he may have any lawyer or friend to assist him at the trial.

Before the trial date, Council members are not permitted to communicate concerning any information they can find out about the case. The professor is questioned, exam books are checked and compared. Seating arrangements are changed if any students in the class who were sitting near the accused are asked to appear as witnesses. John, meanwhile, asks the person sitting next to him...

No Corsages...

"No Corsages," is the rule at this year's dance of this school year. The dance will be in the Canyon, and the rule was announced that there would be no corsages. According to the Rally Club, the "No Corsages" rule is a part of the Rally Club policy of last year that reduced the corsages to the freshmen. No committee was appointed pending a choice of representative from the Campus.

Doctor to Discuss Kinsey Report

Dr. Paul V. Lindegren, prominent Houston physician, will deliver the first in a series of five lectures on "The Christian Home" to the Canterbury Club at room 108 of Anderson Hall, 12:30 p.m. on Tuesday, October 11.

Dr. Lindegren will present his views as a collection of significant data which has been the result of research on the family and marriage. His second topic will be concerned with the overall physical development of the human organism. The third and fourth points will be included in the advantages and dangers of the human organism, the marriage, and the church and morality of the family.

The lecture tomorrow will serve as an introduction to the earlier talks in the program. The second one will be on "Achieving emotional maturity." and will be given on October 24.

The series of lectures is under the auspices of the Canterbury club, but Bill Johnson, president of the club, stressed the fact that the meetings are not closed and invited all interested students to come.

Brantly Announces Naval Scholarship Fall Program

Captain R. B. Brantly, U.S.N., Professor of Naval Science, Rice Institute, announced today that Rice students can apply for enrollment in the Navy's new college scholarship program. Details of the program have been set as the date on which a competitive examination will be given to all eligible applicants for the NROTC. About 2300 young men will be selected to receive scholarship training in the program in the Fall of 1949. Applications must be made by the Naval Examining Station, Galveston, Texas, and will be open for enrollment until December 15.

No Serious Objection Found In "Guidance"...
We Have A Long Way To Go

Four years at Rice, a degree, and graduation. And at the end of those four years, very few Rice students will be able to say that they know many of their professors as well as friends.

For the students who have not wished to drink coffee with one of their professors, to sit down and have a general ball session with the man that lectures to them week after week. Admitting that they are mistaken. There should be a care if they don't even see their professors at class time, the majority of Rice students would appreciate an opportunity to know the men that teach them.

What's wrong with A House? What's wrong with Bill Williams? I do not mean his faculty membership, but the fact of the fault—the fact of the students. As a group there are fewer student bodies that are more narrow when it comes to getting out and making new friends and acquaintances. Rice students seem to feel naturally inferior to their professors, and since you are not supposed to feel inferior the best thing to do is to ignore the faculty.

The individual student should, of course, take the initiative. This there is no sort of program or platform that will promote "better student-faculty relationships." However a few things might be suggested to the faculty members that would encourage the more hesistant members of this hesitant student body: 1. More open hours for informal discussion, in and out of the classroom.

2. A desire to treat each student as an individual and less as a minute portion of a mass.

3. Frequenting student meeting places, and participating in student affairs.

A college should have an easy and friendly attitude towards all that are in theCircle of scholars secure in mutual friendship and dedicated to the love of truth. Students and faculty members alike should all be students.

There should be an air of mutual respect and consideration, and honest appreciation for the virtues and talents of all other individuals. The Rice student body has a long way to go.

Vote!

Monday is election day, and all that can be said is that that has been a better and said better election than before.

There is absolutely no reason why there should not be 100% participation, even this year is not too late. The voter must use their intelligence and exercise their judgment as individuals, considering carefully the points of view and political and social principles.

The new Student Association consolidation is under preparation, and the present Student Council will be called upon to carry the major portion of the work. This is an opportunity to be of assistance to the students. It is the Student Association's post-war reorganization and it is the pattern for many years to come. (There are two vacancies on the Student Council to be filled Monday.)

This is an important year for the Honor System. They begin work under a new constitution and will be trying to strengthen the belief in the Honor System of all Rice students. (There are three vacancies on the Honor Council to be filled Monday.)

If you don't vote will you please explain why?

Wallace Sincere; States Analyzer

"Wallace Sincere," States Analyzer

Editor's Note:

This is the fourth in a series of four articles in which for president will be briefly sketched. Emphasis will be placed upon contrasting ideas and not upon personalities of personal lives of the four men.

By Finis Cowan

The sketching of Henry A. Wallace presents the most difficult problem of the four candidates. Wallace is not a forceful statesman—he does not equivocate and will be objective about a man like Wallace.

The views of the Progressive candidate for President should be divided into two parts, his foreign policy and his ideas on domestic policy.

The most important parts of Wallace's 14 point policy program follow:

1) Take private profit out of war industry.

2) Reform Drexel exchange of scientific information.

3) Restate a vigorous international relief agency.

4) Reinstate the prestige and authority of the U.N.

5) End the draft and stop planning universal military training.

6) End the increasing dominance of the military in American foreign policy.

Mr. Wallace's foreign policy is firm, he is weak and friendly. Others have characterized his policy in moratoriums. A statement of Vincent Sheean, has described Wallace's foreign policy thus: "Give Russia Berlin and all her other claims, and the world will have immunity.

Mr. Wallace's foreign policy is firm, he is weak and friendly. Others have characterized his policy in moratoriums. A statement of Vincent Sheean, has described Wallace's foreign policy thus: "Give Russia Berlin and all her other claims, and the world will have immunity.

Mr. Wallace would push a law enabling a dollar on 25-year mortgages. He supports a pension system for all public employees more than all persons over 60 years of age.

His platform states, "The people through their democratically elected representatives must take control of the main levers of the economic system."

We may safely state that Mr. Wallace's statement of his ideas as "progressive capitalism" is slightly incorrect.

The Communist Party has supported Mr. Wallace and he has never given any support in any way to this party.

It can be told of Mr. Wallace that he does believe in the people. No matter how violently one might oppose him, a disinterested observer is forced to admit Wallace's sincerity and honesty.

53 Scholarships Awarded Last Year; Many Available for Needy Students

by Emmett McGeever

Not enough attention is called to the fact that there are many scholarship and student aid funds available to deserving students of the Rice Institute.

Last year 53 scholarships were awarded and there are more which are awaiting approval. These funds are reserved as higher rewards for scholarship and in particular for evidence of creative capacity in productive scholarships.

Aside from the Graham-Baker scholarship and the Junior-Engineering scholarship which are normally awarded to those with the highest averages, most of these benefits are intended for students who are in part or wholly supporting themselves. In fact, through these scholarships it is possible for any one with a high standing in the pre-medical course to school despite financial difficulties.

These stipends are listed and enumerated in the Announcements. There are the numerical amounts and the requirements to be met. It would be to the advantage of each student to investigate these scholarships and it would be to the advantage of the Rice Institute if the competition were a little lower.

There are 13 specific fellowships in each branch of research. In addition to this, the Rice Institute each year gives an undetermined number of fellowships for graduate work, depending upon the need.

Of particular importance are the industrial fellowships—that is, those awarded by Eastman Kodak, Dow Chemical, Dupont, Lummis, Shell, and other scientifically minded companies.

Since the war, many large companies have discovered the value of pure research and are making graduate studies the corner stone of their company.

There are no strings attached to these fellowships. The companies give no stipulation as to type of research or result except that they must be corrected or guided by qualified members of the faculty.

But Now You Know That Leonard Has a middle Name

by Camilla Grobe

On Monday, October 3, 1927 the Houston Post dispatch headline read "Millions Cheer Hindenburg on 80th Birthday." Back in Greenville, Texas, the Greenville Times carried another birthday story. This one told of a brand new vital statistical entered that day in the birth record of Hunt County.

This small statistic was named Leonard Lycurgus Law-Giver Pinhead Williams, Jr.

Little Lycurgus

Little Lycurgus grew fast in the county of the blackest land and the whitest people in Texas and before many summers had rolled away, he was a member of the Lion's Club—not the one you're thinking of. This Lion's club was the Greenville High football team. Here come the beginning honors for Lycurgus—for he became known Pinhead (Lycurgus was too scholastic-sounding for an all-round big boy) and then the Lions gave him a letter for leaving the team when he graduated in June, 1945.

Two dozen days later he came to Rice with the greenest freshman class ever to trip through Sallyport. Among these freshmen Pinhead stood out with his fancy shirt and his fancy hair. He wore an eye fast, and there are those who say he hit his campus running for office and prove their point by showing he was freshmen advisor to the Honor Council, Tau Nu representative to the same council, and on the Student Council also.

End of Public Life

But the strain of public life began to tell on him—and so did his professors. So in 1947 he announced his retirement from public life. No one knows better than Rice how England felt when Churchill left office.

Still honors came thick and fast. Just as Greenville promoted him from Lycurgus to Pinhead, Rice raised him from Pinhead to Leonard. The Greeks awarded him the Tau Beta Pi, which is generally believed to be something like the Medal of Honor is this country. He is now president of the Associated Students of the Honor Council of and the Hall Committee.

Rah! Rah!

He joined the Rally Club, and like most of its members, still belongs to it.

If he were listed in a catalogue as mereheadless, the description under his picture would read: "Late 1927 model, 17% heads, brown hair and a mashing weight 165 lbs." From a statistical standpoint based on this information, any girl would be apt to send off for him without knowing he is a chemical engineer. Since he is placed in his category, poor Leonard has to work like a horse so he can hit the hay early. We feel sure the girl would be awed by a note: "This is not the man of whom the bellas told."

Man of Distinction

Though the Thresher doesn't know whether Leonard has switched or not, it can say without fear of contradiction that he is a man of distinction.

Founders Aims Are Threefold:
Education, Research, Care of Sick:
By Etta Colish

Few people know what is going on just across the street from the Rice Institute. Those who do know the Texas Medical Center is being built there hardly realize what a profound effect it will have on them and their city.

The Texas Medical Center has a three-fold purpose all related to the well-being and health of mankind. First stress is laid on education, the training of physicians, dentists, nurses, and other health workers. The second purpose is the encouragement and conduct of research and medical investigation concerning the causes, treatments, and prevention of diseases. Finally, care of the sick and aid in the development and provision of ever higher standards of hospital and medical service coordinate the two previous purposes. The medical center is strengthening its educational institutions rather than its congregation of hospitals.

Leaders in the fields of science have stated that a greater opportunity than this is to be found anywhere else in the Texas Medical Center, for this center has been planned from the very beginning with a well-balanced program in mind. As a rule medical centers grow without organization but add institutions as the need arises. In the medical center group opportunities for study, research, and observation will be enhanced by the wide range of available facilities.

The list of component branches of the Texas Medical Center is headed by an impressive one: The University of Texas will have four institutions there: The Anderson Hospital for Cancer Research, the Dental Branch with four schools, the School of Public Health and Geographical Medicine, and the Post Graduate Medical School. The estimated cost of these institutions is over $20,000,000. Construction of the Dental School and Anderson Cancer building is scheduled to start this winter, and the Post Graduate Medical School will be ready to open in the temporary quarters about the same time.

School of Graphic Medicine
Will Atract South Americans

The School of Graphic Medicine will be of special interest to Central and South American students since it will begin its research and work on tropical diseases. Transportation facilitated by the opening of the Latin American air lines here, would be a considerable number of Latin American Centrists who were interested in eliminating the diseases which have plagued these lands for years and have made industry in many areas virtually impossible will join in the research of the Texas Medical Center. Dr. Chandler of the Rice Institute will also cooperate in this research.

The Anderson Hospital for Cancer Research will have a manifold program. Diagnosis and treatment, detection and prevention, and consultation are considered among the most important phases. In addition to these there will be research work done by two departments, biological and medical, in the educational department. The future plans include a School of Oncology, the study of cancer, which will cooperate with the Dental School of Texas University in combating cancer of the mouth.

Already in operation and playing an integral part in the Medical Center is the Baylor University Medical School. Close cooperation with other educational divisions of the center is planned for this school.

The new Hermann Hospital will open in November and the Hermann Professional building is used for December. The new hospital, together with the older Hermann Hospital will have a 656-bed capacity.

Charity Groups Will Receive Special Attention in Clinic
A Center addition to be started in 1949 is the Central Outpatient Clinic and Pathological Institute. The clinic will be sponsored by the Texas Medical Center, Inc, to obtain the maximum benefit of the Center's facilities. The staff will be composed of instructors from the teaching institutions, and will provide the means for complete and modern diagnosis and outpatient care in every phase of medicine and low income groups. Thus the individual hospital will feel the responsibilities of this responsibility. However, in cases which require hospitalization, the patients will be sent to the various hospitals best equipped to treat particular diseases.

In summary, centralization and systematization of records and existing equipment will benefit the hospitals, while the concentration of large numbers of cases histories will be of inestimable value in teaching institutions and research workers.

One further project that is scheduled for this year is the Amilcar Temple Sir's $1,000,000 Crippled Children's Hospital. Among this is on the construction list for early 1949 are the $1,000,000 Methodist Hospital, the $2,000,000 City University Hospital, the $2,000,000 St. Lukes Hospital, the $2,000,000 University of Houston College of Nursing, and the $1,000,000 Academic Museum of Medicine Library. In the fall semester of 1949 the Nursing College will begin classes, probably in temporary quarters.

Institutions still in the planning stage are a Hospital, a Psychiatric Hospital, a Hospital for Chronic Ills, and a Urological Hospital.

After reading this impressive list of institutions that will comprise the Texas Medical Center, one may be curious about how the idea originated. About twenty years ago a number of far-sighted Houston men discussed a dream of a united and integrated medical center that would combine the talents and abilities of the leaders of science for a single purpose—health, present and future. This plan would not only benefit Houston and serve to place the city in an important position, but also add the whole of humanity. These men, however, were never able to get any further than the vision stage, and the medical center would have advanced no further than the dream stage. The idea has not been for the achievement of the M. D. Anderson Foundation of about $20,000,000 in 1939.

... he was both busy during the whole term and did not look around. He noticed Doe changing positions from time to time and turning pages, but didn't bother to see any more. Extensive questioning is made of these and the other witnesses along the same lines. One witness testifies that he saw Doe leaning toward Jones but paid no attention to it as he had no time to spare. The Council hears and questions all witnesses as does the defendant.

The professor has written the letter stating there is evidence of cheating and explained why this is also read in the presence of the accused. At the conclusion of the presentation of evidence Doe is given a chance to sum up his case and is then dismissed. The Council discusses the case among themselves; a vote by secret ballot is then taken. A unanimous vote of "guilty" is required to convict Doe.

The chairman counts the ballots and finds that this is the case. The Council must decide upon a sentence immediately. In Doe's case it is the minimum penalty of one year suspension from school.

An abstract of the hearing and trials is sent to the President of the Institute. Upon his approval, a registered letter is sent to the accused and to his parents or guardian, and the decision is made known to Mr. Cameron, who sends a notice to all those involved saying that he has been dropped from the rolls.

A Challenge...

To the Editor:

In the last few days there has been much bitter and vindictive criticism of the editorial policy of the Thresher. This editorial writer has heard the greatest bitterness is those which have taken a stand against hazing and which have suggested that Rice needs a new dormitory more than a new stadium.

These editorials have undoubtedly been calm and rational. The criticism has not been. Noise talk has been handled in an impeachment of the Editor of the Thresher.

This is an appropriate time to ask, "Why the bitterness?" Evidently there are those on the campus who believe that "school spirit" is something inspired by a broum. If the advocates of hazing sincerely believe that the Thresher's criticism of hazing is irresponsible and injurious to the school, they should bring their fight into the open.

If the bitterness expressed so loudly about the campus is well grounded, we should have received more letters than the one from the Freshman Guidance Committee. Any individual or group can have any letter published no matter how intramural Schedules Posted Tuesday

by Dewey Gonsoulin

The schedules for the intramural games were posted Tuesday afternoon in the Field House with play beginning Wednesday. There were five leagues formed: Northern conference which will play at 4:30 on Monday afternoons, Southern conference which will play at 4:30 on Tuesday afternoons, Central conference playing at 4:30 on Wednesday afternoons, Eastern conference playing at 4:30 on Thursday afternoons, and the Western conference which will play on Fridays at 4:30.

The games to be played the first part of next week are listed below:

Students Invited To Attend Meeting On Anti-Semitism

The Houston Human Relations Commission is sponsoring a meeting Monday night on "Anti-Semitism." The meeting will begin promptly at 8 p.m. and will be held in the YWCA downtown.

The Houston Human Relations Commission is a function of the Houston Interracial Committee, a group that has been active for years trying to create Brotherhood between all men of all races in this area. This group is designed to appeal to the younger citizens of Houston, especially to college students and young professional people. The discussion on Anti-Semitism will be led by University of Houston students.

Dr. John T. Smith, Assistant Professor of Chemistry at Rice, has been chairman of the Houston Human Relations Commission for the past few months. He cordially invites all interested Rice students to attend the meeting.

The whole procedure is kept secret by the Council. The only mention made is a small notice in The Thresher stating that a freshman student was suspended for one year by the Honor Council.

Craigs
Professor Pierre Girard of the French Department is now back at the Institute after spending the summer months in his native country. Mr. Girard said that he returned to France this summer "to see my family as well as to continue my personal research work in comparative French and English, and to keep in touch with working classes, which was not expected. People say 'Why not have DeGaulle?' They are looking to him as a sort of 'leader of two evils.'"

Then asked Professor Girard how he found the domestic situation in France today as compared with the situation when he was over there one year ago.

"The material situation," he said, "has been somewhat eased by generous aid from the United States, and thus is much better than I found it a year ago. You can find things today which one year ago would have been impossible. The problem now is not to find things but rather to be able to buy them. Prices are exorbitant and salaries are low—some as low as twenty-five dollars a month."

But our conversation was not altogether about unpleasant things. Mr. Girard said to let it be known to the working classes, which was not expected, that the new cabinet has one great disadvantage. It gives people who disagree with the platforms of the two parties no organization which can represent their views in the government. Those people whose views differ can attempt to have their views embodied in the two parties, but they cannot present their views to the electorate. Thus, some people might have to subscribe to a number of views that are unsatisfactory to them.

Dr. Lear said, "If the 'multi-party' system gained a foothold in the United States, it would probably give various minority groups representation in the congress. The party in power may be forced to compromise with the other minority parties. Such a system is used in France."

The predominance of the "two party" system can be easily traced in American history. Third parties in our history have only been threats to the major parties in as much as their programs are concerned. Most of the Populist party platforms have been adopted by this country, with a few exceptions. If the platform of a third party is favorable to the majority of the voters, it may even attempt to align themselves with the Republican party, as Mr. Porter, the Republican candidate for senator, advocates states rights. Such a development would be contrary to the historic Republican "national" attitude, and its effect on the Democratic "states rights" attitude would be uncertain. Should a strong basing of the Republican party bring about such a situation, in addition to the right wing of the party, the Populist case might have a relatively permanent minority party.

"A desirable change is the elector's college," said Dr. Lear, "could be brought about by the enactment of a bill which is now before congress." This bill provides for the electoral college membership to be based on the percentage of votes cast for each party in each state rather than on the majority of votes cast in each state.

The "two party" system seems to be easily traced in American history. Third parties today have only been threats to the major parties in as much as their programs are concerned. Most of the Populist party platforms have been adopted by this country, with a few exceptions. If the platform of a third party is favorable to the majority of the voters, it will be adopted ultimately as a platform by one of the major parties. But the third party's purpose will have been achieved and its members will dissolve. If majority opinion were to become favorable toward Mr. Wallace's foreign policy, one bi-partisan foreign policy would be forced. Dr. Lear said that the States Rights party is more likely to survive than the Progressive party. He thinks that the Blackshirts are trying to get control of the Democratic party, whereas, Mr. Wallace is trying to build up an independent movement.
Men of Vision Are Basis Of New Medical Center

This sum of money, from the same great philanthropist who enabled the Rice Institute to build Anderson Hall, together with much of vision as the trustees of the Foundation, William H. Bates, John H. Freeman, and Horace M. Williams, and the President of the Texas Medical Center, Inc., Dr. W. W. Hope, became the basis and driving force behind the Texas Medical Center. In November of 1945 the Center received its charter as a nonprofit organization from the state of Texas.

The beautifully wooded 134-acre site which was part of Hermann Park was purchased from the city by the Anderson Foundation and given to the Medical Center. The 12 acres of land provided within these acres now make possible the construction of schools, hospitals, and research institutions. The Texas Medical Center, Inc., provides site engineering, paying and other utility work at no cost to the individual institutions.

"Each institution maintains its own leadership, but having representation of the central governing body through a membership on the Board of Trustees of the Texas Medical Center, Inc," that statement of thecooling effect of great music which seeks more than sensationalism. You can always tell Tchaikowsky's music by the little pool of Karo that seeps out of the phonograph while it is playing and runs all over everything. More machines and classic timers have been ruined by this sticky stuff than even the worst modern atomizer.

Men of Vision Are Basis Of New Medical Center

This sum of money, from the same great philanthropist who enabled the Rice Institute to build Anderson Hall, together with much of vision as the trustees of the Foundation, William H. Bates, John H. Freeman, and Horace M. Williams, and the President of the Texas Medical Center, Inc., Dr. W. W. Hope, became the basis and driving force behind the Texas Medical Center. In November of 1945 the Center received its charter as a nonprofit organization from the state of Texas.

Also discussed were the hours at which Rice girls may swim at the YMCA. These hours include: Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays from 3:30 to 4:30 p.m. and from 7:00 to 7:30 p.m., Tuesday and Thursday from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m., Friday from 5:00 p.m. to 7:00 p.m., and Saturday 12:00 to 2:00 p.m.

Miss Colleen Alessandra, Council president, pointed out that girls who want more information about the girls' sports program can receive an information bulletin concerning the program at the field house.

New Sports Plans Set Up for Girls

At its meeting Tuesday, the Girl's Sports Council discussed with Mr. G. L. Hernandez the facilities and hours that will be available at the field house for the girl's sports and intramural programs. A tennis and archery program for girls is to be set up next week, according to Mr. Hernandez, and all girls interested in receiving instruction or just participating in either tennis or archery have been asked to report at the field house on Monday, Wednesday, or Friday of next week at either 2:00 or 5:00 p.m. In addition to these times girls may also report at 10:00 or 11:00 a.m. on Monday, October 18. At these times all classes will be organized in tennis and archery, and according to Mr. Hernandez, in case of bad weather, activities will be planned indoors for these classes.

Tennis courts will be made available at these times for instruction classes or girls may receive a court for themselves for practice at any time. Archery courts will be available for either instruction or practice from 10:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. every day.

Miss Louise Clise was appointed by the Council to investigate the demand for a bowling league and to see if this league should be placed under the Girl's Sports Council or should function as an independent league.

Also discussed were the hours at which Rice girls may swim at the YMCA. These hours include: Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays from 3:30 to 4:30 p.m. and from 7:00 to 7:30 p.m., Tuesday and Thursday from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m., Friday from 5:00 p.m. to 7:00 p.m., and Saturday 12:00 to 2:00 p.m.

Miss Colleen Alessandra, Council president, pointed out that girls who want more information about the girls' sports program can receive an information bulletin concerning the program at the field house.
Charlie Moore Steals Show At Quarterback Luncheon

"Every time we got going, we dropped the ball!"

That, in the words of Joe Neely, was the reason behind Rice's loss to L. S. U. last Saturday night. The explanation was given to the Downtown Quarterback Clubs at their meeting last Wednesday. And the motion pictures of the game, shown at the meeting, bore out their Neely's words almost to the letter. The Owls fumbled the ball no less than seven times. Needless to say, gold fingers were the objective of the Rice coaches this week.

Curt Griggs reported on the U.S.C. team which Rice plays in Los Angeles today and said that Rice would have to watch its step. Jim Billings Trojan quarterback, has completed 16 out of 27 passes this year and is backed up by some speedy wingbacks and powerful fullbacks. In the line, they have Bob Billings, a great end, and 6 foot 8 inch by 235 pounds Bob Henneman at tackle. Other notables at the luncheon were Eddie Dyer, the old Rice left.

Owls To California Today; To Meet U.S.C. Trojans

Leaving by plane for California early last Thursday morning, the Rice Owls are scheduled to meet the Trojans of the University of Southern California in an interscholastic affair at the Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum. The game will be broadcast over station KFTR for Houston fans beginning at 2:30 Central Standard time.

Losing to the Owls and the Trojans played to a 7-7 draw so both Charlie Moore Steals Show Owls To California Today; To Meet U.S.C. Trojans

Charmed by our poor luck but work and rather wary of the close games on tap this week, we prepare cautiously to make our predictions on these games. Last week, we were right on only three out of six, with one ending in a tie. This brought our season record to 13-6-0, with no team in our, and we hope to bring up our average for this week before the conference warfare really gets underway. That is when the upssets really begin. Rice goes.

T. C. U. vs. Indiana: The Frogs have disappointed us so far this season, but they may get going. Indiana has won two games this year and has two great players back. George Talbert and tackle John Goldsberry. T. C. U. won last week, this week, either, Indiana will win, 14-7.

Texas vs. Oklahoma: Oklahoma looked pretty good beating A & M last week. We believe that is due more to the weakness of the Aggies rather than anything else. The Aggies haven't beaten Texas since 1919, and they won't do it this year.

Texas A & M vs. L. S. U.: The Aggies just don't have the scoring punch in the reserves this year; L. S. U. smashed an impressive, hard running team last week. We'll take L. S. U., 27-7, and the margin may be larger.

S. M. U. vs. Missouri: Missouri can score as evidenced by the 61 points they rolled up against Utah and Oregon last week. While losing to Ohio State 20-0 last week.

Dubbs, Draft Dodgers Win First Football Intramurals

The intramural football season got underway Wednesday with a bang as two hard-fought games were reeled off. In the first thriller the Draft Dodgers beat down a valiant Navy team in the last minute to win 14-8.

The Dodgers got started early in the game as John Sullivan intercepted a pass and two plays later passed to Irving Schweppe in the end zone for the first marker. Late in the second quarter just before the half ended Kenneth Albert rushed in for the Dodgers and tackled Johnny Papuga behind the goal line for a safety. Roaring back in the third quarter the Navy Zoomers scored a safety when Papuga smeared Sullivan back of the goal line after a bad center, and counted a TD when Jack Farriss heaved a 40 yard pass to Papuga. With the game tied 8-all the game see-sawed back and forth before the Dodgers swept to the Navy 14. On fourth down with one minute left Sullivan faked a pass sidestepped across for the second touchdown for the Dodgers and the winning score. Outstanding for the Dodgers were Pudgy Haromon, Charlie Tighe, and Paul Schermer, and Charlie Tighe, and Bullock raced out on the field, for all intents and purposes to replace Melvin Lyle. However, after Bullock had whispered a few words to the quarterback he raced off the field, leaving Lyle still in the game. Rule 5, Section 2, Article 2 states, "A substitute who has reported may not be withdrawn until after one down." The next Tiger play—a pass to Lyle—carried inside the Rice 15 and had a penalty been called nullifying it, the drive may have stalled and no TD scored.

On another occasion, the Owls had the ball on about their own 50, fourth down and short yardage to go. They elected to kick, and though Wyatt got off a decent punt, he was roughed up pretty badly. A penalty was not called. L. S. U. got the ball on about their own 35 where the punt was downed; Rice should have got a first down on their own 35.

Rule 10, Section 2, Article 2 reads, "A player of B shall not run into or rough a kicker, who kicks from behind his line, unless his contact is incidental and after he has touched the kick in flight, is caused by the kicker's own motions, or unless it was not obvious that a kick was to be made." Anyone who saw the play will agree that the Tiger linemen were guilty of violating this statute. This was the play after which Coach Neely came out to talk it over with the referee (the fellow with the cap and the two red flags).

Again, taking nothing away from a hustling gang of L. S. U. football players, last Saturday's game might have been a lot more interesting had the officials let the football players play football. After all, that's what the folks pay to see.
