AFL's Side of Stadium Row

Union Wants Recognition From Brown & Root

"We have repeatedly tried to organize Brown & Root and will continue to try to win. We will use any lawful means to obtain recognition as a bargaining organization."

With these words Mr. Charles E. Jones, spokesman for the local AFL construction trades union, made clear his union's position in the dispute with Brown & Root.

The Houston Building Trades Council (AFL) has been picketing the Brown & Root offices since February 8 in protest of Brown & Root's refusal to recognize the union as a bargaining agent and to negotiate regarding wages and working conditions.

The union claims that Brown & Root pays sub-standard wages. Mr. Jones, the spokesman, says that the company can prove that they have consistently paid higher wages than those shown above. Mr. Jones of the AFL said he had no specific information about the wages which Brown & Root pays to a single job being done by the contractors.

In last week's Thresher, there appeared a statement from Brown & Root that if the picketing would go on longer the company would threaten to delay construction of the huge stadium, to be built by Feb. 1, and to use a court order restraining the union from picketing. The stadium is scheduled to open next September 30.

Commenting on this statement, Mr. Jones said, "If Herman Brown was able to secure a court order, he would have it put into effect before now. If we were to violate the state or federal anti-labor laws, we would expect Mr. Brown to go into court and get an order. I don't think he can do it."

The possibility of labor boycott of the new stadium has been mentioned frequently in Houston labor circles. At first, the AFL said the union would hold on to the court order restraining the union from picketing. The stadium is scheduled to open next September 30.

On Monday, February 13th, each literacy society will turn in lists of girls to whom they would like to give bids. Miss Dworkin, who will phone any girl who had an invitation for membership on that Monday and Tuesday. On Wednesday morning, February 14th, the freshmen girls will register their children first, second, third and fourth, with Mrs. Dworkin, for the preceding night. Then mail the bids to the girls. The freshmen girls should receive their bids in the mail on Tuesday, Feb. 14th.

Unfair?

At two gates in the back of the Rice campus, pickets walk back and forth from early morning to late afternoon. On their shoulders they carry signs reading: "This job unfair. Houston Building Trades Council, AFL-CIO."

Why is the job unfair?

According to an official union spokesman, it is unfair because "Brown & Root has refused to recognize the (union) scale of wages and conditions which have been negotiated over many years by the labor movement's existence."

Let us analyze that statement.

What is the union scale which Brown & Root has refused to recognize?

It is a scale which the more powerful unions have succeeded in raising substantially in the last five years since the end of the war. It is a scale which for some types of work is more than the average graduate of Rice with a five-year degree in Engineering or Architecture can expect to make for some years.

What are the conditions which the AFL bleats that Brown & Root have not complied with?

These conditions involve the "right" of the union to dictate to the employer specific details of how a job is to be done. One of the principle "conditions" which the union is trying to force on Brown & Root is the recognition of carpenters, plumbers, and other workers as "craftsmen."

Translated into practice, this means that a union carpenter will refuse to paint, to lay cement, in short do anything but carpentry work, even if ordered by his employer.

In other words, under union "conditions," the man who pays the salary of a worker is entitled only to the particular services from the worker which the union will allow him to perform.

In a story found on page one, column one, this issue of The Thresher, AFL representative made the statement that his union is picketing Brown & Root jobs in an attempt to force the contractors to accept union standards of wages and conditions and to recognize the union as a bargaining agent.

This statement may likewise prove worthy of analysis.

An AFL spokesman has said that, so far as he knows, there are no union men working on the stadium. How then, can the union fairly ask to be recognized as the bargaining agent for the men on the job?

The same spokesman was quoted as saying that he had no specific information on wages and conditions on the job. How can the union claim to be picketing only to bring Brown & Root wages and standards in line with their own scale?

What does the union want?

New Campanile Policy Announced

Outstanding Seniors, Favorites Pictures To Appear Only Once

New policies with regard to Campanile features have been announced by the Campanile staff.

There will be a section of the yearbook, corresponding to the section previously called "Vanity Fair" but to be known by a name to be chosen (possibly from suggestions offered by the student body), which will be devoted to the beauty and/or popularity of individual students and the accomplishments of outstanding individual seniors.

Any one whose photograph is selected must have his or her picture appear in this section. Any girl or boy who has been selected as being a popular favorite must have his or her photograph appear in this section, except when such a person has been selected to be an outstanding senior.

In the latter case a photograph will appear in only the outstanding senior section, and the number of popular favorites will be increased by the number of outstanding seniors chosen as popular favorites.

Any girl selected as a beauty must have her photograph appear in the beauty section, except when she has been chosen as an outstanding senior and/or a popular favorite, in which case her photograph may appear only in the outstanding senior section. Any boy selected as a favorite must have his or her picture appear in this section, whichever is the higher of the two honors awarded her.

Whenever one individual has been awarded honors in more than one of the above three classifications, his or her picture will appear only once, in the section previously called "Vanity Fair" but to be known by a name to be chosen (possibly from suggestions offered by the student body), which will be devoted to the beauty and/or popularity of individual students and the accomplishments of outstanding individual seniors.

The situation in the Intramural Basketball has just about decided to take form. Three of the four leagues have progressed to the point that champions are in the making. In the other league the race is wide open and anything can happen.

In the Northern League (Tuesday) the Zoomers boast a 3 won, none lost record and have the title nearly wrapped up. Peachey of the Dubbs and Bill Taylor of the RAF held down the fourth and fifth positions with 43 points apiece. J. C. Prueckler of the second place Roach Mummees has spot number six with 43. Spots eight and nine go to Truet of the Five Mac's and Bill Taylor of the RAF. Their individual point output is 38. Vann Littleston of the CCC rounds out the first 10 with his 30 points. Of the first 10 scorers it is obvious to notice that it doesn't take excessive height to score points. Bill Collins, the leader, is under 6 feet. Earl Bellamy in the third position is also under the Charmed measurement as far as basketball goes. The same applies to Joe Wheeler and Vann Littleston of the Five Mac's. The best team performance as counted on the scale of defensive records goes to the sharp-shooting RAF. They produced in two and three points and are making the Mariners to boast the highest total for one game this season. The high total for complete games played however goes to the Roaches who have a .500. They have averaged 62 points per game. For teams playing two or more games the CCC has the best defensive record. They have permitted only 25 points in two games.

As the second week of the Southwest Conference race drew to a close, the Mustangs of SMU were perched on top and the Longhorns were on the cusp. SMU has three wins with but a single loss, and is closely followed by Arkansas which has two wins and also one loss. Baylor is the only other team to have one setback but the Bears only have one win. Texas, the Aggies, and TCU each have been defeated twice, while the Owls have the unenviable record of three losses against a single win.

The beauty of the situation rests in that the Blue squad is forced to spend the present few days in the cellar with the highest scoring team and has the leading individual scorer in Joe McDermott who is well ahead of Jewel McDowell with 244 points to the Owls' 218.

One could easily assume from the foregoing that the Owls don't belong there in the cellar and in all probability will soon arise from said cellar. With the hard-running type of play the Mustangs of SMU have been fortunate enough to see.
