The freshmen have been orient- ing themselves for the new semester. Under the direction of Sophomore R. J. Howard, the freshmen will participate in a series of activities scheduled to make them feel at home and to enable them to feel at home at Rice.

Last Saturday, the freshmen attended the presidential address given by President Howard, and board talks by other members of administrative staff and by upperclassmen. Following a tour of the campus, the new students were taken to A-Army House where they enrolled in the religious club of their choice. Saturday night the freshmen attended the football game in convenient freshman stands and sat in a special cheering section. Following the game, a Freshman Orientation Dance was held.

The initial social meeting sessions shook and mall runs, and weare

McCann Named To Direct Admissions

Effective July 1, Rice's first and only Registrar, Samuel G. McCann, was named the Institute's first Director of Admissions. The post of Acting Registrar was taken by James Thomas, Associate Professor of English and Acting Registrar. Michael V. McEnany, Assistant Engineer, was named Assistant Registrar.

After 34 years as Registrar, handling admissions, registration records, awards, publications, and general correspondence, Mr. McCann retires that the registrar's office, administration, and correspondence had grown large enough to warrant the approval of Dr. Houston, who has left his duties in the Registrar's office in capable hands and taken the new position.

Mr. McCann first came to Rice in 1919 as a teaching fellow, served in the Field Artillery in World War I, and returned in 1919 as Registrar. His years of continuous service in that post have brought him into intimate contact with many students, whose affection and respect he reciprocates.

Mr. McCann said that the new position would allow him more time to visit with students and to spend more time with the Alumni Association Scholarship Committee.

Rice named one of the first of Directors of Admissions will be the hall from the Registrar's Office, in Room 109. An additional Ziegler Hall.

Rice Army Cadets Tops At Camp

Army ROTC Cadets set an enviable record at the -Corps of Engineers (ROTC) Camp held last summer at Camp Carson, Colorado, according to information released today by the Military Science Department.

Perceptions, more students from Rice were placed in the top brackets of their class than ever before.

Richter Announces

Under the direction of the traditional freshman glee club, the Rice Glee Club, many events have been planned for the freshmen. On October 1, a get acquainted dance will be held in the Rice Field House, as well as the Rice Homecoming Dance in November. The freshmen will be welcomed by the president of the class of 1957, Robert W. McCann, who will speak on the importance of the freshman class and its role in the future of the Rice Institute.

The freshmen will have the opportunity to meet with the president, as well as with other members of the administration. The freshmen will also have the chance to meet with other students and to become acquainted with the campus. The freshmen will be given a tour of the campus and will be shown the facilities available to them.

The freshmen will have the opportunity to participate in a variety of activities, including sports, music, and theater. They will have the chance to meet new people and to make friends.

Rice social activities started in premature high gear with the Rice-Four Roses football game on September 19. Shirt sleeves and cottons were exchanged for nylon girdles and suede-like cotton. Black with red, red with black, navy with red, all white. 44¢ each. It's new, it zips up the back for riding hood. It's a hipper hood. The Rice Band will be in full force. Fashions—note the “zippy” glove.

Summer Travelers...

Back from a reportedly wonderful time in Europe is Ann Krachy who was a student at the University College, Cambridge tour. Boyd Larsen spent summer time in Denmark. Rice was well represented at its well known securing of foreign bands. U. of Colorado was sponsored by Joan Lasho, Nancy Mason, Carolyn Turner, Polly Bennett, Mary Beth James, Jane Lasho, Dortheb Nicholl, Sarah Lepor, Tom Taylor, Nancy Wiggins, and Jo Truksa.

President and Matriculation Address

PROVOST

President, Rice Institute

SEPTEMBER 25, 1858

To the New Students:

Welcome to Rice Institute. You are about to embark on a journey that will shape your future and leave a lasting impact on your personal and intellectual development. Here, you will find a community of scholars, a place where ideas flourish, and opportunities abound. It is a place where you will learn not only from your professors but also from each other, through discussions, debates, and collaborative projects.

The Rice Institute is a place where learning is not confined to the classroom. Our campus is a living laboratory, a space where you can apply what you learn in practical ways. You will have the opportunity to engage in a variety of extracurricular activities, from sports to student organizations, all of which will enrich your experience and help you grow as a well-rounded individual.

Life at Rice is not just about studying. You will also have the chance to explore your interests, pursue your passions, and develop new skills. Whether it's through our library or the Student Union, you will have access to a wealth of resources to support your academic and personal growth.

Remember, education at Rice is not just about preparing you for a career. It's about preparing you to be a thoughtful, responsible citizen who is capable of making informed decisions and contributing positively to society. The skills you acquire here will serve you well throughout your life, and we are proud to be a part of your educational journey.

May your time at Rice be fulfilling, challenging, and rewarding. We are confident that you will find this place to be a stimulating, supportive, and enjoyable environment. Welcome to Rice Institute, and welcome to your academic journey.

Seven League Boots

The advent of the Institute's first music course this fall and the announcement that classes in geology will begin the second semester are two more reminders of the tremendous advances made by Rice since the end of the war.

The Rice Theatre, the school's founding back in 1912, Rice has reached among the front universities in the nation. However, one of the most outstanding features of this school has been an unceasing effort toward building a bigger and better university. These two latest additions, though at present only courses in these phases of study, will be the groundwork for future achievements in the fields of music and geology at Rice.

These, combined with the ambitious building program undertaken by Rice since the end of the war, present a truly remarkable picture of growth and development on this campus.

The Rice student body, past, present, and future, owe a debt of gratitude to Mrs. Sally Shepherd Perkins and Mrs. Olga Kiehle Wims, whose generous gifts made possible the inauguration of two new studies in the Institute, music and geology respectively.

The school deserves credit for its work in making these new departments the most distinguished in their field.

The gift of Mrs. Wims established the Wims Chair of Geology in memory of her husband, Harry Caudy Wims, formerly president of the Humble Oil Company and Vice Chairman of the Rice Institute Board of Trustees. The Shepherd School of Music here at Rice should be the ultimate result of the gift of Mrs. Perkins of Richmond, Virginia.

Only Three Years To Buy Tickets

Without too much fanfare and without the appropriate trumpet blasts, the news of the Houston World's Fair of 1956 has been released. The fair will be held in a new location since 1939, the year of the famed New York World's Fair and the not too well remembered San Francisco World's Fair.

The men who are working on the project certainly deserve the respect and admiration of the people of Texas as well as Houston. If handled well, and the men in charge are capable of this, the fair would add to the prestige of the city immeasurably.

And the results of such a fair would have no small effect on Rice.

However, not meaning to play down this ambitious project, we have our doubts as to whether the time is ripe for Houston or Houson is ready for a world's fair.

In a recent press conference, Dr. W. W. Kemmeter, general manager of the fair, said, "The 935-acre site will be the same area used by the New York World's Fair, or half the size of Texas."

But perhaps 1956 these points will not be the potential stumbling blocks they are today. In any case, we hope so. We do hope, however, that the fair has concluded its operation, that it will not be remembered for the type of feature that is brought up whenever the San Francisco World's Fair is mentioned—Sally Rand's Nude Ranch.

Be A Good Sport

Following Saturday's Rice-Florida football game, Rick Cussans, the star Custer fallback said, "I wish you'd tell the people of Houston how much I appreciate the way they treated me. They were very good to me."

Although the words of appreciation were devoted to the people of Houston, it was an indirect compliment to the Rice students and their sportsmanship.

And the quotation is appropriate for a subject that will be coming up next week. In the list meeting of the Southwest Spiritmanship Committee this past session, it was decided to designate the week of September 28 to October 3, as Spiritmanship Week. It will be a conference-wide observance, and each school is to make a special effort to emphasize sportsmanship during this week.

On the last day of the week, Saturday, October 3, all the conference teams have football games scheduled, and it was agreed that special efforts would be made to publicize sportsmanship during these games. Since Rice is at Ithaca, playing Cornell, our chances to do this are not too good. However, attempts will be made to stress the idea on campus during the week.

Sportmanship is a 52-weeks-a-year proposition, but this will be an added incentive for the students to put in some extra thought on the subject.

The Rice Institute, is published weekly in Houston, Texas, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

The material which one can acquire in "The Rice Thresher" is invaluable, particularly to new members of the Institute, and every student should make it a point to read at least a quick perusal of both each front page, requests for news tips, and more than likely one of the most widely read pages of any magazine or newspaper and provide an excellent opportunity of stirring up a bonfire, aside from supplying an editor with copy just as he has decided that he never fill last few columns inches.

In this issue is found President Houston's Matriculation Address, delivered to the Freeman class last Saturday, September 10. Do not let the fine print discourage you from reading it, for it indeed has a message to not only the freshmen, but to the rest of the students as well.

There's one new sound on phonograph records that almost anybody can copy. It's three minutes of silence. "A" sound. Although the idea has been kicked around as a gag for some time, an "A" sound has recently found its way into a Columbia broadcast system engineer, Hans Oliffs, and Dan Peters. He even got one with a disk called "Three Minutes of Silence" containing black grooves on each side. A similar silent disk reportedly is popular on juke boxes in England.

Poor Seating

It has come to our attention that several hundred students and student guests were turned away from the recent football game last week's game with Florida. It seems that the size of the student section was reduced from what has been the normal allocation.

This was indeed a regrettable incident, and from the student viewpoint, a wholly uncalled for incident. Certainly by now the Business Department of the Athletic Office must know how many seats will be needed to accommodate the students and their guests.

As a result of the lack of suitable arrangements, the students were crowded into too small a space, and at that, there were several hundred who were forced to sit in the end zone.

It has been ascertained that there will not be a recurrence of this unfortunate situation, nevertheless, for a school that has a stadium with a seat-student ratio of about 47-1, it should never have occurred.

BY DICK KARL

Last week, in the editorial columns, I listed some long-range plans for this year's THRESHER. Among these plans dealt mainly with THRESH-ER policy, and more than likely bore remarkable resemblances to some political campaign promises. I thought that what all that would be successful was that the Education Board was slammed on these subjects, and the remainder of these columns devoted to the whirl and crunch of school activities, there are a few more points to be made.

For the truly ambitious student, there is a world of ill information that can be gleaned from the pages of the THRESH-ER. Although, one of our projects for the year will be to make it easier for the student, or typical student, also locate pertinent information.

The newspaper is still in a process of organization, but in this issue we can find two new features. One of these is a calendar of campus activities, and the other is a column of general notices. At least a quick glance at each one will, I believe, be rewarding for every student.

Recently, one of the Houston daily papers began running on its front page an article with a title such as "Here's the West's Hottest Stock." This feature also applies to the THRESH-ER. We cannot possibly hope to catch every piece of news every week. Therefore, news tips and stories are joyfully accepted from non-staffers. That room again is B-46.

The above particularly applies to organizations seeking publicity, dev-
KINSEY REPORT

Survey of Opinions On Book of the Hour

By JONCE JOHNSON

Today, the book of the hour is the Kinsey report, Sexual Behavior in the Human Female. Magazines editorialize about it, critics review it, and no one dares be caught without an opinion on it. Like most people, I take it for granted that their opinion is the popular one, neither too old-fashioned, nor yet too liberal. I decided to conduct a survey to discover just exactly what views are most acceptable.

The first interviewed was a very shy, sweet-looking young girl of eighteen, who went along to read it. Why should I wade through a book of that size when I already know more about sex than any book could?

A precise gentleman admitted having read the book, but hastened to add, “I still believe that there should be two sexes. Women are quite nice, really.”

One strong, athletic man listened to my questions with bored politeness. “Sure, I read the book, but it didn’t make too much impression on me. Women—can make—I mean, take ‘em or leave ‘em.”

Don’t think all my interviews went easily. One elderly woman whose name I forgot gave me a very judicious reply. The X-rays showed that her back was not freckled, fortunately.

Rather cautiously I approached my next victim—a glum, dejected young man. His one comment on the book was, “Yeah. I read it. Good scientific report, but mistaken. Take it from me, that should be titled Sexual Behavior in the Human Female.”

I came across one other very interesting opinion on the book. This one, which I quote, was published in the September issue of the The Southern Conservative, edited by Ida M. Darden, of Fort Worth. “As we see it, there are very few lower specimens of humanity than those persons who compile reports of this nature. They have nothing but a survey this filthy, obscene material to the reading public. Frankly, they are in a class with the perverts who sell French postcards and other low-level printed matter.

“Instead of admitting that they are compounding pornographic literature for the money they make out of it, these degraded characters refer to their scientific research, thereby infusing magazines and newspapers with carry articles on it to promote its sale.

“Even lower in the scale of existence are the morons and degenerates who provide the information and statistics contained in this bas-estastic literature and who are lacking in human dignity and personal fastidiousness that they have no hesitancy in discussing such intimate details.

“Still lower are those who provide a market for it by purchasing it, and paying dollars, I may say, the privilege of wallowing in the sewers.

“The only conclusion that the conductor of this survey has reached is: Sex is here to stay, and people are glad of it.”

Glee Club Meets, Plans ’53 Events

The newly-formed Rice Glee Club held its first meeting Monday night, according to Arthur E. Hall, Lecturer in Music at Rice and organizer of the Glee Club, discussed plans for the year. He assured the forty-four students who came to the meeting that the possiblility of a joint production with The Rice Players, and of the hope for a musical comedy.

According to present plans the men of the Glee Club will rehearse from 7:00 to 8:00 Monday evening, and the women from 8:00 to 9:00 on Wednesdays. The two groups will hold frequent joint rehearsals.

Each applicant for the Glee Club will be given a voice tryout by Mr. Hall in order to determine the singer’s range. Initial tryouts were held yesterday, and will be continued today from 1:00 until 5:00 in rooms B-30 of Fondren Library. Those not able to attend a coridal invitation to all Rice singers interested in joining the club.

Mexican Artist’s Work Shown Here

A collection of pen-and-ink drawings by Carlos Orozco Romero is on display in the lobby exhibit hall on the second floor of Fondren Library. These drawings were done in 1941 for the book Modern Mexican Painters. They portray Mexico’s leading contemporary artists.

Romero’s early training as a newspaper cartoonist is revealed in the drawings, although he now ranks artistically with the artists whom he portrays, such as Riveras and Tamayo. Probably the most bit- ing caricature in the group is Ro-

The 1953 version of the Rice Owls began drills Monday as four of the three boys deemed uniform and improved to Coach Charlie Moore's backfield coach Harold Stock- line for opening day drills. The most publicized of the group, and consequently the most eyed, was Jack Thornecker, La Marque's versatile athlete and seeming all-around star. The 210 lb. left end was a participant in football, basketball, and track in high school and is being counted on to be a prominent member of Rice athletic teams in the near future.

Plan For Banner Intramural Year

With an eye on the biggest and greatest season ever, the Physical Education office began taking entries for touch football, the first and last of a long season of intramural activities. With the October 1 deadline still over a week ago, it was expected that almost one-third of the 1,000 students who would participate in intramurals during the 1954 school year would sign up on the first day of classes to play in the five afternoon leagues.

Last year, twenty-six drills played some sixty games with the Ba-Ba Riders, Sixty Minute Men, South Hall Polecats, Swivel Hip Sixes and Wolves winning their respective league. In all there were 220 men and 200 women on teams who decided to be individuals. It is hoped that the number of girls who participate in individual sports will be greatly increased during the coming year.

At any rate, it looks like a big season for Rice intramurals in 53-54. Remember, the deadline for touch football is on October 9th. Register your team now in the Physical Education office now.

After one week under the new rules, Tate coaches have noted that many coaches were right when they said they would not know how to do anything better, and the game would slow down in the upper class.

Many feel that some coaches are likely to be confused about the rules in 1959, but it does not mean that they will lose. All the gamedaying ability will be essentially gone, Tate and Corpus Christi, or the college drifts, will average only four or five completed passes.

Some coaches are looking for the defense to interfere with things. Tate coaches have been waiting until the second rush of sixteen years ago to determine exactly what they need to do in the game.

It was noticeable too, Saturday night, that if teams have not first, 60-yard game, the game will slow down in the upper class. The windless, less pressure helped by experience, and one episode like it is enough to cure any end of letting it happen again.

Bridges was particularly outstanding against Florida. His defensive players have been doubled, as well as his ability to block down field. All these doubts were more than dispelled, as Tate turned their own play to play against teams that were good, might get too much help in the last period. The windless, less pressure helped by experience, and one episode like it is enough to cure any end of letting it happen again.
