

At home Sunday

Dear Father

I by the mail send you papers - the Sun and Sunday School which I desire to read on Saturday afternoon

This morning having one of the Angellons to attend to I went to Church - Mrs. Meath's gave us dinner - and now the house is empty for a body - I am well slept in the lower room last night and have not made any effort today - The Sun is very hot but the Sun is oppressive
I hope you feel well

Your Sister had read her visit me last evening - The children are all well, Mary has a good deal of admiration for you after says she visits you when home -

I shall be pleased if you are immersed by the refreshing kind of summer - You have cut to me, lost the last of your good, and I hope you may long retain all you have -

I read and reread all your letters with good life I had been happy - do not know whose I would choose for you -

Before long you will be home again - The red state is out of order - The people needs work some places

From since the rain. I have a few good peaches to-day from the trees

If you can conveniently, get to gather some plants and seeds

I write here a hope of making the same packet

Lately I have made one back out. Mrs Cook and Sea Veeke will be here again I do not know when. Sea Veeke was on his best Thomas Mifflin about as usual, the girl is the same

Give my love to your Mother I have a great deal to tell him if I could write better would send him a long letter - If I had money would make him a bag - I try to attend to the home well - and to be ready to receive, and my first visit by the effort.

Monday -

all as usual.
The ladies stay at home well.

No one in the house. The washerwoman just now departed.

Maria here today
I bread to try to cook while she heat continues -

Should not be surprised if I have a letter from you & the mail coming - I feel Mrs. Mason again last week but did not do much at that. For the time
