Redman remembered as witty, easy-going

by Julia Bunte

Thursday, April 5, 2007

Baker College junior Parker Redman was found unresponsive at about 7 a.m. Monday, and a memorial service and candlelight vigil began at 7 p.m. that night in the Baker Student Union. [Redman's] death remains unknown, pending further testing, but Redman's impact on fellow students is undeniable.

Campus observed a moment of silence for Redman at 12:30 p.m., and a memorial service and candlelight vigil began at 7 p.m. that night in the Baker Student Union. [Redman's] death remains unknown, pending further testing, but Redman's impact on fellow students is undeniable.

Parker showed up to class, Francis said. "He was a really smart kid. He didn't need to do anything, and he was always doing it."

Parker was an avid fan of computer technology. When he was not at work or at school, he could be found in his room playing video games or working on his computer.

"He was a very laid-back person," Francis said. "He was always ready to have a good time, whether it was on campus or off."