I prefer a matinee

I fear that immersed in affairs as you must now be, you will not be able to look me up here. But, if that is possible, ~~you know~~ how delighted I shall be to see you.

My dear Caine,

Mr Collins has
been so kind as to send me an invitation to attend the repetition ~~at~~ générale of your forthcoming play.

Please convey my
thanks to him.

I am naturally very wishful to see the

play, & until this morning, <sup>thought I</sup> could do so. But, unfortunately, the strong <sup>wind of yesterday,</sup> or something else, has brought on an inflammation of the eyes - a thing I am rather subject to,

and I must eschew
any kind of representation that necessitates my looking through an

opera glass

should you at any time be generously
mood to send me
tickets I am afraid
I must remind you
that they must be in a front row, or
in a box near the stage. Of course you would only think of doing this when the first flush of the piece is over & Mr Colwell
