Reading

After reading an article in to-day's Daily Mail on "The Christian" I should like to tell Mr Caine that if Hardy is a classic he too must sell his soul and give us readers, something to damn what little good there is in us, if he do. I shall be sorry that he gave us John Storm, who, like the few is an ideal Christian, and will live, in spite of "panorama" "vast irrelevancies" and
"clumsy devices" yours
